Senate Pushes for Vote on Draft Bill

SEEK DRASTIC RESTRICTIONS ON ARGUMENTS

Leaders Fear Further Delay Will Disrupt Army's Plans For Garrisoning Outposts.

HOUSE AWAITS MEASURE

Representatives See Speedy Passage of the Revised Proposal.

WASHINGTON —Expressing concern lest delays disrupt the army's plans for garrisoning distant outposts, administration leaders worked today for a senate showdown on legislation to extend the rank and file's military service 18 months.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic chieftain, informally asked opponents to agree to drastic restrictions on debate in an effort to reach a final vote before sundown

With house leaders waiting impatiently to begin consideration of the measure there, Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) said he feared any further senate delay might postpone final enactment so long that the general staff would be put to needless difficulties in replacing or reconstructing units containing national guardsmen and others scheduled to be mustered out soon under the present service limitation of one year

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, told the military committee recently that unless congress passed the legislation quickly a national guard anti-aircraft regiment acutely needed in Hawaii would have to sail for home Aug. 1 to be demobilized Similar situations prevailed, Marshall said, at other distant bases.

Pepper told reporters this was one reason why he was willing, if necessary, to accept an amendment sponsored by a majority of the military committee to limit the proposed extension of service for selectees, guardsmen, reserves and enlisted men to 18 months He added that he much preferred the original version of the bill, calling for an indefinite extension.

Leaders forecast adoption of the amendment, rejection of other minor pending proposals and speedy approval of the revised bill Pepper said, however, that reports indicated the house might cut the time to 12 months—a limitation rejected by the senate yesterday in an unexpectedly one-sided 50 to 21 vote

IT WAS CHILLY

City Colder Last Night Than on Any Aug. 7 Since 1925.

Mansfield residents dug deep into closets last night for extra blankets as the mercury dropped to 45 degrees bringing the coldest August 7 in the last 16 years.

They may have acted prematurely, however, for although temperatures were slow in climbing today, reaching 88 at noon, warmer weather was predicted for tonight. Fair weather with increasing cloudiness is expected tomorrow.

Highest point hit by the thermometer yesterday was 87 degrees which combined with the 45 degree low to give an average of only 66 degrees, 6 4 lower than the 16-year average. For the first time since the summer season got under way, bathers at the Liberty park pool complained of the cool air on emerging from the water. No precipitation was recorded during the entire day.

COTTON TO CHINA

Lease-Lend Officials Send 10 Million Yards Abroad.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., disclosed today that the lease-lend administration has ordered 10,000,000 yards of cotton goods for the Chinese army.

Morgenthau told reporters that the cotton would be used to make uniforms for Chinese soldiers. The order for the textile was approved a few days ago, he said.

Here's 'Once Over' on Hosiery Situation

These are lisle—not so hot, are they?

These are nylon—they're smooth, but scarce.

These are anklets—comfy, but no glamor.

These are silk—and getting scarce.

RIGBY ESTATE VALUE LISTED

James A Rigby, Mansfield business and civic leader, who died June 25, left an estate valued at $686,015, most of it representing stocks and bonds, an inventory filed in Richland county probate court showed today.

The inventory listed $559,314 in bonds, $96,891 in stock holdings $12,035 in notes, $13,338 in accounts and debts receivable, and personal holdings valued at $1,565

Mr. Rigby was president of the Citizens National Bank and Trust company and the Mansfield Telephone company and his major stock holdings were in those firms His telephone holdings were listed at $71,168 and bank stock at $20,558.

He also had $29,500 worth of

Alas! Girls, Those Lisle Hose Haven't Same Allure

But Don't Worry Too Much, There Are Still Anklets, Nylon, Paint, and New Substitutes on the Way.

By RUTH TITSCHINGER

You might as well know it girls—you aren't going to look so alluring in lisle hose

In an attempt to find a substitute for silk hose I wandered to a hose counter and bought a pair of lisle hose They're terrible! They wrinkle, bag and look like you're wearing burlap sacks tied up with rope (Well, maybe they aren't quite that bad.)

But, it won't help the average girl's disposition or poise to feel like she had a couple of weights tied to her legs In case you've been unfortunate enough to have to wear lisle hose you'll know they are made of heavy material that just won't cling or stay put.

Of course, there will be nylon. If you're willing to spend your soda and coke money for hose you'll wear nylon, if not, you'll wear cotton lisle, or do without.

Disregarding the lisle hose, I decided to try anklets Well, I've come to the conclusion you can wear anklets, but they certainly don't do anything to glamorize the lady's shapely underpinnings.

As silk hose supplies in Mansfield's department stores were down to their last dozens today and no more shipments being received, Mansfield women began to realize the seriousness of the present defense program.

However, don't worry too much about it. New York manufacturers are already working on a substitute for silk hosiery and it may be more practical than silk, according to some Mansfield merchants

Paris advises wearing tweed hose to match your suits and sports clothes Half socks will also be popular with the younger set. For under your formal, why wear hose? They don't show So, girls, guard that last pair of silk hose with your lives, it may be your last for a long, long time. Personally, I think I'll eat a few less sodas and sundaes and drink half as many cokes and spend that extra money on a pair of nylons.

TWO KILLED IN CRASH

ASHTABULA—(INS)—The 1941 traffic death toll in Ashtabula county today stood at 19, after two Ashtabulans died of injuries received in an accident Tuesday night The dead are Harry Thomas, 18, and Charles H. Leaphart, 74.

Capt. Bruno Mussolini Dies 'Gloriously' In Plane Crash

(By Associated Press)

ROME—Captain Bruno Mussolini, 22, second son of Benito Mussolini who obeyed his father's motto, "live dangerously," was killed today in the crash of a plane he was testing near Pisa.

"This morning Captain Bruno Mussolini died gloriously near Pisa following an accident in the flight of an experimental plane," said the official announcement

Thus ended a young life into which action in three wars had been jammed, along with the thrills of trans-Atlantic flight, air and motor racing.

He was one of Italy's greatest boxing fans, being president of the Italian boxing federation.

Bruno was married in 1938 to Gina Ruberti. They had one child,

Red Cross Begins Organization For Peacetime Service, Emergency Rescues.

Richland county chapter of the Red Cross today launched organization of a woman's motor corps for peace time service and to aid rescue workers in time of emergency.

Miss Lenore Van Gundia, executive secretary, said Applications from women drivers over 21 years of age will be accepted immediately by the Red Cross office and the corps will be organized as soon as possible

All applicants must be American citizens to comply with National Red Cross regulations and they must be experienced drivers with good records, the secretary explained.

Richland chapter seeks 30 drivers to cover the county area which now has several hundred volunteer Red Cross workers engaged in the production of sewed and

NAVY REPORTS FISHING GOOD FOR FDR PARTY

Dispatch From Potomac Fails To State Whether President Still Aboard Yacht.

LOCATION UNANNOUNCED

Rumors Still Persist Roosevelt To Meet Churchill at Sea.

WASHINGTON — A navy dispatch from the presidential yacht Potomac said today that the presidential party was continuing its cruise toward an unannounced destination and that Mr Roosevelt was being kept advised of the international situation by radio

The message read

"All members of party showing effects of sunning Fishing luck good No destination announced President being kept in close touch international situation by navy radio. All on board well and weather excellent"

The brief message did not specifically say that Mr. Roosevelt was still aboard the Potomac although it did refer to "all members of the party." A dispatch from the Potomac yesterday also failed to state specifically that the president actually was aboard the yacht.

Rumors that Mr Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill had met or were about to meet were kept alive by the cryptic nature of the messages from the Potomac and two new bits of information, all inconclusive.

One was the fact that the president's highest military and naval advisers are absent from the capital

The other was a statement by a well-placed official that he knew that the president and the prime minister had desired for some months to have face-to-face conference

Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, Admiral Harold R Stark, chief of naval operations, Gen. George C Marshall, army chief of staff, and Gen H H. Arnold assistant chief of staff in charge of the army air forces, were not in Washington

Knox was located in York Harbor, Me He had left last Saturday by plane presumably for a week's rest at his home in Manchester, N. H., but it was learned in Boston that he had not been in Manchester and had arrived in York Harbor only yesterday and inspected the Portsmouth navy yard He

CHANGES NAME

UAW Embraces Aircraft and Farm Workers In Title.

BUFFALO, N Y —(AP)— The CIO United Automobile Workers changed the name of their organization today to embrace aircraft and agricultural implement workers

Delegates at the union's sixth annual convention unanimously adopted an amendment to the constitution which provides the union will hereafter be known as the International Union, United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America.

Victor Reuther of Detroit, chairman of the constitution committee, said the change is necessary "if we are to complete our organizational campaign in the aircraft industry as well as among agricultural implement workers."

Nazis Launch 2-Way Push on Northern City

Moscow Reports One of Hitler's Elite 'Death's Head' Divisions Routed, Claim 2,500 Soldiers Killed In Bayonet Battle.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(UP)—Russian forces were reported today to have mauled a German tank division, inflicting heavy losses on two tank regiments, and to have smashed a German infantry division, including two battalions of SS troops.

(By Associated Press)

Russian troops were reported battling fiercely to stem a two-headed drive on Leningrad today, with Nazi columns striking from the south along the shores of Lake Peipus and German-Finnish forces attacking from the north on the Karelian isthmus, within 75 miles of the city.

Soviet reports indicated that the push from the north had temporarily abated overnight but noted heavy fighting south of the old-time capital of the czars.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Moscow declared, however, that the Soviet high command was "confident that the Germans will reach neither Kiev nor Leningrad, let alone Moscow itself."

German military dispatches pictured the strongest Nazi blows as falling on Russian forces in the Ukraine, and the Germans declared that the remainder of Red army troops surrounded in that grain-rich province were now "facing destruction"

The German high command asserted yesterday that Nazi troops were "at the gateway of Kiev," the capital.

A Red army bulletin reported that Russian troops had routed one of Adolf Hitler's elite "toden kopfe" (death's head) divisions, littering the field with 2,500 Germans killed and wounded

The Soviet communique quoted a captured German lance corporal as saying that the division, formed of Hitler's blackshirt Schutzstaffel detachments, had orders to deal a "decisive blow" in one of the main sectors of the eastern front.

Under Russian artillery fire, the communique related, German "tanks, motorcycles, machine-guns and mine-throwers and mutilated bodies of Fascist soldiers were flung into the air . . . and when the 'toden kopfe' wavered, Red army men launched a bayonet charge and completed the rout of the Fascist division."

All last night, the Soviet high command said, German troops stormed Red army positions on the Estonia front, driving toward Leningrad in what appeared to be the "new theater" of offensive operations mentioned yesterday by the Nazi high command.

The Russians also reported all-night fighting in the sectors of Smolensk, 230 miles west of Moscow, and Bel Tserkov, 50 miles south of Kiev, the Ukraine capital—the same battle zones which have appeared regularly in Soviet communiques.

In the Far East crisis, the British sounded a stiff new warning to Japan, declaring that "all preparations are ready to smash any Japanese attempt to cut the Bur-

JAPS MASS AT THAI BORDER

British Report 10,000 Troops Drawn Up Along 100-Mile Front Near Bangkok.

SAIGON, French Indo-China—Thousands of new Japanese troops disembarked from transports anchored in Saigon harbor today and streamed westward toward the border of Thailand in truck convoys

Only a minimum number of Japanese detachments remained in Saigon

(Editor's note: Reports from Bangkok told of intense Nipponese activity along the Thailand border A dispatch to the London Daily Mail from the Thai capital said 10,000 Japanese troops drawn up along the frontier are feverishly laying out aviation fields.

(Other Bangkok advices said Japanese forces are massing along the banks of 100-mile long Great Lake on the Thai border, 230 miles southeast of Bangkok.

(A dispatch from Hong Kong quoted Chinese dispatches as stating Japanese women and children working in factories in the Japanese-occupied cities of Canton, Swatow and Kong Moon have been ordered evacuated immediately because of the danger of possible air raids in the event of a Japanese expansionist drive to the south

(This report added that the Japanese blockade of the Kwangtung Province coast has been intensified and that only key points in that area are now guarded by the Japanese, thereby enabling Japanese troops to depart from southern China for "other points")

Reports in Saigon said the Mekong river ferry on the road to

HITS WAGE HIKE

Henderson Says Rates of Pay Must Stay Within Bounds.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Price Administrator Leon Henderson today declared that wages "must be kept within bounds" to prevent inflation.

He told the house banking committee, however, that he did not believe provisions for wage regulation should be included in the administration's price control bill.

"It is not necessary to include in a price control bill all the elements that enter into cost, such as interest, transportation and wage payments," he said. "But unless they are kept within bounds it will be impossible to prevent price inflation"

TANKS SPEED UP

Production of Light Fighting Machines Shows Marked Gain.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The production of light tanks increased 1260 per cent during the second quarter of this year over the totals for the first three months of 1941, defense statisticians computed today.

The actual number of the 18-ton war machines produced was not disclosed, but it was learned that more than 225 a month are now being delivered

Wall Street Writer Says Mansfield's Just 'Warming Up' to Defense Orders

The Wall Street Journal reports that Mansfield is just beginning to warm up to the idea of manufacturing for defense

In an article by B H McCormack, staff writer, the New York financial paper says Mansfield business men and manufacturers for a long time have felt that defense orders did not represent a sound advance in operations and that they preferred to produce consumer goods.

Now, however, the article says, shortage of materials and government regulations are contributing to a change in attitude.

The article cited Mansfield as typical of many eastern and midwestern manufacturing communities

"None of the plants of the three companies (Westinghouse, Empire Sheet and Tin Plate and the Mansfield Tire and Rubber companies) accounting for two-thirds of industrial employment here is producing for defense, says McCormack

"In fact, there has not been much enthusiasm for defense work among many businesses here The attitude of business men here on this particular subject appears to sum up about like this:

"If there is something we can make to help the government's defense program we'll be glad to do it. But we're not going after defense business. And we don't want a munitions dump or some other project which will pull hundreds, or even thousands of men into this town. They'll just be a relief load after this is all over," McCormack wrote.

The article points out that Mansfield's industry is centered around the production of durable consumer goods such as refrigerators,

SCHOOL SYSTEM FEELS PINCH OF DEFENSE DRIVE

Has Trouble Getting Men For Teaching Posts; They Go To Army, Other Jobs.

With defense jobs and the draft drawing heavily on the supply of teachers, Mansfield and Richland county schools will have more new instructors when school opens this fall than at any time in recent years.

At least a dozen men teachers including seven in the county schools and five in Mansfield, have resigned or obtained a year's leave to go into the army or air corps, school officials said.

Others have quit teaching jobs to take more lucrative posts in defense industries or to go to other schools with higher salary scales.

The Mansfield board of education has employed teachers three times in recent weeks, believing each time that the staff for the city schools had been completed for the year. In each instance and within a short time, however, three or four others have resigned and created new vacancies.

All vacancies in Mansfield apparently have now been filled, Supt. W. L. Miller said, and there was only one to be filled today in the county teaching staffs, according to Boyd Robinson, county superintendent. The vacancy is in the Bellville high school staff where an English and Latin teacher is needed.

Robinson said teachers have been harder to find this year, and a number of rural boards have been forced to make replacements after hiring complete staffs for the 1941-42 term.

Marriage has taken a greater than average number of women teachers in the city and county schools, superintendents said. The increase in marriages has been general due to the improved economic conditions and the draft law, and the increase has extended to the teaching profession, it was pointed out.

With dozens of men teachers taking better paying jobs, there has been a trend to more women teachers, school officials said, although there were no figures available on the actual increase.

TUNNEL NETWORK UNDER CAPITAL

DENVER —(U.P.)— Few people in Colorado are aware of it, but deep down under the 250,000 cubic feet of solid granite that composes the statehouse in Denver is an intricate system of tunnels and caves that would make an ideal air raid shelter.

The tunnels were put there back in 1890 when the statehouse was built atop Capitol Hill at a cost of $2,800,000. The tunnel system was extended as new buildings were added to the state group atop the hill until now it virtually is a maze.

The tunnel and cave system is barred to the general public but statehouse workers who know about it frequently use the system during winter months to travel under-ground out of the snow and cold from one building to another.

This Is Moscow Afire, According to Reports From Berlin

According to the official German caption with this aerial photo, flashed by radio from Berlin to New York, Moscow is shown aflame following a German air raid on the Russian capital. The smoke clouds, says Berlin, are rising from an industrial plant on the Moskva river (top right). Berlin claims terrific damage has been inflicted on military objectives. Russia has dismissed the attacks as negligible.

Anything Can Happen at a Telegraph Desk

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. —(INS)— Anything can happen at a telegraph desk, believes Lupe Heredia, telegraph agent at a San Antonio hotel.

She tells how a man came up to her desk and filled out a blank asking for a room reservation at a San Antonio hotel. Lupe glanced at the message, then pointed out that the man was filling out the blank in the lobby of that very hotel.

"How did I get here?" said the would-be customer. "I'm supposed to be in Abilene!"

And he went back to the registration desk and had the bellhop return his bags to his room. He had been checking out to go to San Antonio — apparently things were all a little hazy.

WIVES OUTSCORE MEN 3 TO 1 IN ASKING DIVORCE

But It Isn't Always Fault of Hubbies—Chivalry Enters Picture, Say Lawyers.

More than three times as many wives as husbands obtained divorces in Richland county common pleas court during the year ending June 30, the annual report compiled by C. A. McKinley, court assignment clerk, showed today.

Divorce decrees were granted 110 wives and 32 husbands with approximately two-thirds of them obtaining their freedom on grounds of gross neglect.

This figure, which seems to be the prevailing rate all over the country, according to statistics, gives rise to the question: "Are men the real offenders, or are they just polite and let the wives get the divorce, rather than embarrass them by taking action?

"Men don't care to push women around in court," one Mansfield attorney explained, when pressed for an opinion. "They usually have more chivalry than that," he added.

The predominance of women as plaintiffs in divorce actions also springs, in the opinion of this attorney, from the fact that "women are more easily offended than man" "and that what a woman might consider as "extreme cruelty" would not be catalogued as such by some men.

Divorce cases made up more than one-fourth of the total number of cases handled in common pleas court during the year, McKinley said. There were 227 divorce actions filed and approximately 900 cases of all types recorded by the court.

Twenty-nine divorce suits were carried over from the preceding year to be decided while 201 cases were decided during the year.

Seventy-five, or about one-third of the suits filed were settled without a hearing and dismissed. Wives dismissed 43 of them and the husbands 16.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1941.

Cleveland baseball fans, attempting to explain the situation, feel quite sure that the now popular V has no reference to Vitt.

Hitlerites are complaining that Russians are not fighting fair—and possibly the Nazis neglected to send them a book of rules.

It may interest some folks to learn that conservation of cloth may make it necessary to abolish the double-breasted coat—but thus far there has been no rush for the remaining supply.

Time To Cut Non-Defense Costs

TAX PAYING is to become much more serious business for Americans than it has ever been before, under provisions of the new federal tax law that has been passed by the house and is now being considered by the senate.

Not only will small and large income taxpayers find their year's total running considerably higher but there will be a flat tax of $5 on every automobile, double the present tax on a new car purchase, and a flock of new or increased excise taxes.

Personal deductions and allowance for dependents remain unchanged in the bill as passed by the house, and the provision requiring joint return of incomes of husband and wife was eliminated, but all whose earnings are within the income tax paying range—above $800 if single and above $2,000 if married—will be required to pay considerably more next March 15 than they did a year ago.

But even the increases provided for in the house bill will be insufficient to meet requirements and a part of the senate's consideration of the measure will be to find additional sources of revenue.

It cannot be doubted that defense and non-defense expenditures of federal government have already reached tremendous figures—in fact the non-defense costs of maintaining the Roosevelt administration had become impressive long before defense became an important item.

While there is practically universal sanction of intelligently and honestly administered defense expenditures to whatever extent may be deemed necessary, there is still a feeling among taxpayers that radical paring of non-defense expenditures is an obligation of government which is specially important at this time—locally and in the state, as well as nationally.

Married Teachers Can Hold Jobs

MARRIAGE is no longer to result in the discharge of women school teachers, according to a ruling by Attorney General Herbert, under the new teacher tenure law which becomes effective September 1.

It is the attorney general's opinion that even if a board of education has a rule against married women continuing as teachers it cannot refuse to issue a continuing contract to teachers who meet all other requirements, and that no teacher can be forced to retire before reaching the age of seventy, except on grounds prescribed for dismissing a continuing contract teacher, principal among which are immorality and inefficiency.

As passed by the legislature in June, the teachers' tenure law provides that continuing, or life contracts must be tendered to all teachers who on August 31 have completed five years of satisfactory service in school districts of more than 800 enrollment.

The subject of teachers' tenure, intended to stabilize employment in the teaching field, has been up before the legislature regularly for the past twenty years, under sponsorship of teachers' organizations, but it was not until this year that such a law was enacted.

The effect of this increase in state control over local school systems will be watched with interest—and a hope that it will meet what must be its intended purpose of increasing teaching efficiency.

Disposing of Garbage and Rubbish

THE TRUTH, held to be self evident, that "all men are created equal," sometimes seems to clash with such a strange circumstance as that to which Mayor Locke called attention yesterday.

The mayor says that complaints have been made that some people dump garbage and rubbish along city streets and in public parks.

This brings up the point of "equality" of the persons who commit such a filthy nuisance and raises the question, "Equal to what?"

Surely they are not "equal" to decent citizens, who recognize and respect the rights of other people.

It is not uncommon to notice, or hear about, packages of garbage being dumped along rural roads, or near farm houses, and it seems odd that in a country where personal liberty is assumed to be safely entrusted to everybody, there are still some people who seem entirely unfitted to the environment of a civilized community.

Mayor Locke says there is evidence against some of the offenders—that "several parties have even acknowledged it." If that is the case there should be arrests, penalties imposed, and full publicity given the identity of these community misfits.

Decline In Tuberculosis

THIRTY YEARS ago tuberculosis was the first cause of human death. Today, in the United States, it ranks eighth. The last decade alone has seen a decline of 37 per cent in the mortality rate of this once most dreaded disease of all mankind.

Doctor R. H. Sundberg, in his annual report as president of the California Tuberculosis association, pointed out that while spectacular gains have been made against tuberculosis, it would be extremely unwise to take victory for granted. He observed that: "Tuberculosis is still one of the major causes of death, especially in the younger age groups . . . the incidence of the disease might easily increase again. In the present world crisis, for example, one may properly be concerned over the possible effect of post-war conditions. . . . This means continued segregation of infectious cases, earlier diagnosis, particularly through mass surveys and follow-up of contacts, and more adequate treatment of discovered cases before clinical activity develops."

The successful battle being carried on against tuberculosis should demonstrate conclusively to the average layman the ability of the American medical profession, and the responsive willingness with which that profession applies its ability, regardless of class, color, creed or financial position.

CLOSING THE PANTRY WINDOW

Russians Using Retreat Strategy

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

Russian generals are as good retreaters as ever. American military men were somewhat apprehensive for awhile that Slav commanders had lost their retrogressive cunning under the Communistic regime. Now they say they're completely reassured.

Remember the Russo-Japanese war in 1904 and 1905?

The Japs won all the stand-up fights but General Kuropatkin retreated them off the map. One day along would come the news that the islanders had scored a tremendous victory, had a whole army of Russians bottled up tight and were going to annihilate them shortly.

About 24 hours later tidings would arrive that Kuropatkin had pulled off a masterly retreat, had wiggled his entire force out through the Japs encirclement and was fixed to put it into action in some new place. The Japs would take after the retreaters, catch up with them, lick them again, start to exterminate them bodily — and once more they'd evaporate into another masterly retreat.

This went on, over and over again, the full length of quite a long war.

The Japs finally got the decision, but it wasn't anything more than a decision; it wasn't a knockout. President Teddy Roosevelt offered his services as referee. Tsar Nicholas II, then still on the job, had a near-revolution on his hands in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad). He wanted to be able to attend to it in peace, without the distraction of Kuropatkin's everlasting retreating in Siberia, and consequently accepted Teddy's offer.

Japs Win Peace.

The result was a nominal finding in the Japs' favor. If Kuropatkin had been left, though, to retreat to a finish, the probabilities are that he'd have retreated the islanders to death and defeat.

It was the same way during World War I. The Slavs ultimately got tired of retreating and quit, being, most likely, more interested in their revolution at home. But if it hadn't been for that, it's a safe bet they'd have retreated the kaiser into a considerably earlier flight to Holland.

The idea's this:

Individually, the Russians are good enough scrappers, but they don't seem to have the right kind of leadership for a successful offensive campaign. Yet they do have a leadership with a positive genius at squirming out of a tight spot. And their country's so big that there always are plenty of places for them to squirm to. In the process of squirming, doubtless they suffer a percentage of losses, but they're so numerous that a few casualties don't signify to them appreciably.

So, when Herr Hitler hopped on the Bolsheviki, all democratic strategy exclaimed, with one voice:

"Gosh, we hope those Muscovites don't fight to the last gasp. We hope they'll retreat and retreat and retreat, drawing those Heinies in, engulfing them, closing in behind them, guerilla-izing them, keeping them swamped indefinitely."

Fear For Russia.

There was a good bit of democratic apprehension that the Slavs wouldn't wage this kind of a campaign. It was an apprehension based on observation of the Stalinist grab at Finland. "If such a whale of a country as Russia had such a dickens of a time in licking a tiny pewee like Finland," strategists asked, "what chance does it stand of stalling Germany as much as overnight?"

Russia's Finnish campaign necessarily was an offensive campaign. The mass with the Nazis, on the other hand, is defensive—defend awhile and fall back; extend the enemy until his lines are attenuated and then pinch him off at his outermost end.

The democracies don't care if the Nazis do get to Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev. The closer they get to them, the worse they'll be involved.

Listen World!

'And the Walls Fell'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THREE—DOTS—AND A—DASH. . . . The Morse code signal for "Victory" . . . they're racing across Europe in a rising chorus . . . sending their secret message from Holland to Belgium, from Belgium to France, from France to Norway or Denmark . . . on and on—

"VICTORY!"

Captive heels that shuffled listlessly yesterday, are tapping that coded word out today on the pavements of every conquered country. Hands that lagged over the keyboards of hated alien invaders, are rapping them out in eager signalling. School children whistle them . . . engineers and taxi drivers toot them . . . housewives beat them out on their mixing bowls. Even the street walkers, so they say, whisper that beautiful, deadly symbol before they will accept a lover.

And, dawn after dawn, the mysterious "V" appears scrawled on country fences, city walls — even on the dread headquarters of the Gestapo. For V stands for Victory, also—and the hope of Victory is rising like a terrible, glorious chant in every heart in shamed and shackled Europe.

THE UNBELIEVABLE IS HAPPENING. BY A TAPPED SIGNAL. A SCRAWLED INITIAL—AND THE FAITH BEHIND THEM - IMPRISONED MEN ARE DARING TO HOPE THEY MAY BREAK THE MIGHT OF MECHANIZED MONSTERS!

THE "V" CAMPAIGN IS ON!

"But it's silly," you say, sadly. "No one can beat Hitler by tapping out a code signal or scrawling an initial on a door. Faith's a great thing, but you can't expect it to perform miracles." Can't you? I wonder. And think back -

* * *

THEY'D wandered so long since they left Egypt, those fleeing Israelites. Month after month, year after year, they had plodded across the desert sands until hope was shrivelled in them.

It was true — they had seen wonders in the past. A great sea parting before them, so they could pass . . . then rushing together to engulf their enemies. A rock, gushing sweet water when their tongues were black with thirst . . . the earth white with mysterious manna when starvation stalked. But that was long ago. Now, surely, they had come to the end of their trail and their courage—for now they faced the dread, walled city of Jericho and the fury of Jericho's armed soldiers who might, so easily, destroy them in a day.

And what had they—God's lost, despairing children — to defend themselves? No arms. No trained lions and elephants. Nothing. Only a handful of dying men, waiting for the massacre.

Yet, even as they wept, the Voice spoke. Suddenly—like a song of hope. And the Voice told them to forget their fear . . . they did not need arms . . . they had but to do as He said.

For six days they were to march about the city—all the fighting men—once on each day—with seven priests bearing, before the sacred ark, seven trumpets made or rams' horn. And, on the seventh day, they should encompass the city seven times. Then, having done this, the priests should blow a long blast upon all the horns . . . and the people should shout with a great cry . . . AND THE WALLS OF THE CITY WOULD FALL DOWN.

And so it was done!

Despite their trepidation, they still listened . . . even though they doubted, they had obeyed, followed out the command with shaking hearts, giving all they had. And when the moment came, the thing had happened. The walls fell! The city was theirs—theirs with all its wealth and power and new opportunity. They were safe — because they had dared to hope—dared to believe!

The "V" Campaign is on! You say it won't amount to anything . . . it's just a fantical movement . . . miracles don't happen nowadays.

I wonder. And think back—

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Selectees Dislike Soldier's Life, Few Comprehend Nation's Peril

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Most attentive listeners in the crowded senate galleries during the debate on retaining selectees were little groups of sunburned, khaki-clad young men from the draft army.

On leave from nearby camps, they took time out to visit the august chamber and listen to the discussion that was deciding their future.

To find out what they, themselves, think about being kept in the army more than one year, the Merry-Go-Rounders interviewed one hundred of them as they left the senate galleries.

All of those interviewed were from eastern states and represented practically every branch of the army. They were asked: "What do you think about the bill you have just heard debated?" Here are the results:

Almost without exception they said they wanted to return to civilian life at the end of one year's service.

About 30 per cent were very emphatic they should be "let out", repeating Senator Wheeler's phrase that the government was "breaking faith."

The remaining 70 per cent, while desirous of returning home, were not insistent. About one-third of this group volunteered that they were willing to abide by the action of congress.

* * *

Don't Understand Danger.

1. Soldering has no appeal. The army definitely has not sold itself to them as a way of life. With one possible exception, no selectee indicated that he would re-enlist voluntarily if discharged.

They had no complaints about their treatment. Food was good, they were not overworked, some were in better physical condition than ever before. But soldiering just wasn't popular.

Not one of these youngsters seemed aware of what was happening in the world; that their country might be in danger; that they should make some sacrifice for their country.

Said a stocky Signal corps man: "If we see that things are urgent, we're willing to stay, but who knows? The president says they are urgent. Wheeler and Lindbergh say they aren't. Until they can decide, they ought to let us out."

* * *

"These Guys Outside."

SAID an air corps corporal: "These guys outside who are making good dough and striking for more while they keep us in the army—that's the thing that bothers me."

"There are plenty of men who like the army," said a cavalryman. "Why not let them volunteer? And besides, what are they going to do with all the new men coming in? They won't have enough room for them.

Said a pugnacious Brooklynite: "They made a deal with us, and they ought to keep it. You can write this—if they'll let you—we're pretty hot about this business of keeping us in the army longer than they promised, pretty damned hot about it."

* * *

The Russians Have It.

THIS does not mean that these boys are unpatriotic. But it does mean that the U. S. army so far has neglected the most important conclusion to be drawn from the lesson of France and the lesson of Russia.

In France, battalions, companies, entire regiments surrendered almost en masse. The world was astounded. The French army had been heralded as the best in the world. Its officers had been trained for years. Its equipment, while not as good as the Nazis, was the next best in Europe.

Yet the French army collapsed in eleven short days.

Frenchmen who went through that catastrophic surrender now tell us that more important than Hitler's panzer divisions, more important than stuka dive-bombers, was French morale. French troops did not want to fight.

The country was torn by dissension. Men in the trenches had no idea why they were fighting. If they knew anything, it was that they were fighting for the Comite des Forges (Steel Trust) or the Deux Cent Familles (the 200 families who ruled the Bank of France.)

So France fell. One year later an entirely different story comes from Russia.

There' a huge, unwieldy, green army facing the pick of Hitler's mechanized veterans, has retreated, but not surrendered. At times isolated and hopelessly cut off, Russian troops have continued fighting—fighting so desperately that the Germans have complained that they did not obey the rules of war.

Obviously Russian troops have been defending something which they cherished. They have had what the French lacked—morale.

* * *

We Don't Have It—Yet.

AND to date, judging by our poll of selectees, plus the war department's own frank fears, the American army also lacks morale. They have no idea that the country is in danger. They have little realization why they were drafted.

We have spent a year building up cantonments with most of the comforts of home. We have provided better than average food, good clothing and fair equipment. But we have neglected morale—the most important thing of all.

Nine months ago, this column published a series on lack of morale inside the draft army. Nine months ago, Mr. Roosevelt addressed an inquiry to Chief of Staff General Marshall, got the reply that the situation was OK. About the same time, Harry Harrison, who ran the Smileage Book campaign for camp morale and entertainment during the last war, proposed a new program, but was rebuffed.

In other words, with the country facing an urgent crisis in both the Atlantic and the Pacific, the war department has given the boys no conception of what is happening in the world, has made no attempt to show them why they are called upon to serve. It has completely fallen down on the one big weapon which makes a modern army fight.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — These are the things I love . . . The song by the same name . . . A gun that was picked up on the field after the second battle of Manassas . . . The blurred, unreal image of Manhattan through the river haze from the top of a Hudson river ferry at night . . . Newsreel theaters . . . The "feel" of a room that is lined with good books . . . The nutty fragrance of fresh roasted coffee . . . Lynn Fontanne reading "The White Cliffs" . . . Lynn Fontanne doing anything . . . Lynn Fontanne.

These are the things I don't love . . . The Hut-Sut song . . . Radio announcers who speak of "see-yutes" of clothes when they mean suits . . . Parades . . . Drug store coffee . . . Novelists with a candid camera complex who think you won't get it unless they "tell all." . . . People who stand too close to you when they talk to you . . . Professional southerners . . . Child actors . . . Cigars . . . Hearty back-slappers . . . Broadway styles, where men wear their pants too short, and too narrow about the cuff . . . Broadway, where men wear their pants too high . . . The waists of their pants come up to their armpits . . . These are just some of the things I don't love.

MISS J. B., of Jefferson City, Missouri, sends in a note . . . "You like the American State Guide series, do you? . . . Wait till you see 'Missouri'. . . . It's truly a honey . . ."

I will go further than that and say it is one of the two or three best in the entire series . . . The Guide to the "Show Me" state is a lucky-bag of fascinating facts and pictures . . . But then, what else could you expect from a state that was born on the Mississippi, grew up playing with sternwheelers, and produced Jesse James, Mark Twain, and the St. Louis Cardinals? . . . If I ever want to write anything about Missouri I won't have to go there for color . . . I'll just pick up this guide . . . It's all there, between the covers of as important a book as has come out this year. Congratulations.

A Farmer's Diary

Oldest Living Thing

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A MAN who likes to fish told me of a massive tree that sheltered him during a summer storm. "It's no fish story—that tree is the oldest living thing, I'll bet, in the state of Ohio," he said. "It's sixteen feet across and was once 48 feet around. It stands in a farmer's pasture near an abandoned mill race, where there used to be a covered bridge."

"It makes a tall story," I suggested. "Are you willing to go along and show it to me?"

"Yes, indeed,"—he was as excited as a boy.

Today we went. He had a long twine string in his pocket, and a brand new yard stick was thrown into the rear of the car. The distance was not great. We parked near a modern steel bridge that spans the river, where the covered wooden bridge used to be. He pointed out a forked sycamore that grew very near the bank.

As we walked toward the river in the direction of the tree, I was surprised to find it taking on more massive proportions, with each step. From some distance, it appeared like any ordinary tree. It's like some people I have known, I mused—the closer you come to know them, the greater they are—and the more they shelter you.

There it stood, a giant shell, hollow for perhaps 17 feet, with the main trunk entirely gone. A dozen people could have stood within the cavity. Above, the two great prongs of trunk rose to the height of an average forest tree. I stepped the distance from one side of the cavity to the other and found it indeed 16 feet in diameter. I went a little distance off and as I spoke the echo of my voice returned to me.

If those sensitive, woody tissues could have recorded all the sounds of the centuries since it was a sapling—if some strange modern instrument could be found to reveal its secrets—what an insight this old tree might give to the history of the continent. Here would be recorded the periodic storms and floods of near a thousand years; the quarrels of early wild beasts; the love calls of wood folk and red men; the stealthy movements of native hunters.

This tree might have been old when Columbus discovered America—a thriving giant when Napoleon was at Waterloo; a member of the primitive, murmuring forest on our first Independence day.

Now, a headless shattered wreck, it still clings tenaciously to life in our troubled age, and even the oldest inhabitant of that vicinity can scarcely remember a change in it. It has always been the same—if no destructive storm passes by, it may live on for another century.

Battle Of Wits.

The tug of war between an eloping bride and an aviator, who grounded his plane in the desert, furnishes some lively moments in "The Bride Came C. D. D.," showing at the Ohio with Bette Davis and James Cagney in the leading roles. Harry Davenport, as a ghost town innkeeper, is a spectator at some of these battles and the cast includes Eugene Pallette and Stuart Erwin. Bette plays a wealthy daughter of the rich, who is bound for Las Vegas with a bandleader to be married. Her plans are interrupted when the aviator, hired to fly the couple to the marriage license bureau, decides to return the girl to her father.

* * *

Homey American Story.

The homey aspects of American life are portrayed in Jean Hersholt's picture "They Meet Again," playing at the Madison. Laid in a small town the play concerns Hersholt's attempts, as the popular character, "Dr. Christian," to clear a bank teller of a charge of misappropriating funds and also to restore happiness to a motherless young girl whose health has been impaired by her father's misfortune. Dorothy Lovett and Robert Baldwin play the romantic leads and Anne Bennett has the part of the young girl The latter's singing voice is heard for the first time in this production. Hugh Herbert is starred in "Hello Sucker," the second attraction.

* * *

Mystery Thriller.

"The Vampire Bat," a mystery thriller revolving around hypnotism is playing at the Ritz with Melvin Douglas, Fay Wray and Lionel Atwell in the leading roles. "Flight From Destiny," the co-attraction, features Thomas Mitchell, Geraldine Fitzgerald and James Stephenson.

* * *

Career Comedy.

"Model Wife," showing at the Park, presents Joan Blondell and Dick Powell in the lead roles of a wedded couple working in an ultra-smart gown shoppe where marriage in the personnel is taboo. The couple guard their secret until the son of the boss falls in love with the wife. Lee Bowman plays the latter role and the cast includes Charlie Ruggles, Ruth Donnelly and Billy Gilbert. The story of a crusading young newspaper man who fights to clean up working conditions in a coal mine is told in Richard Arlen's new picture "Black Diamonds," the second attraction. Andy Devine is in the cast.

Romantic Comedy.

Filmed against the background of New York's busy streets, "Two In a Taxi," opening Friday at the Majestic, deals with a taxi driver's efforts to buy a little business and marry a blonde model. Anita Louise and Russell Hayden have the leads and the cast includes Noah Beery, jr., and Dick Purcell. This is Hayden's first role minus a sombrero and gun always a part of his equipment in the "Hopalong Cassidy" series in which he appeared as "Lucky." Tim Holt has the starring role in "Six Gun Gold," the co-attraction.

LET YOUR BURNER TELL YOU HOW GOOD THE GAS IS!

That hot, blue flame on your range, under your water heater—wherever you want heat flexible, controllable, dependable, efficient—that, tells the fact of good gas service. You can see it with your own eyes. You can feel it with your own hands. It is undeniable in results—cooking results, hot water results, refrigeration results, heating results, thousands upon thousands of the most exacting industrial results—and low cost results. No other fuel service available to human use has so many advantages at the same low cost.

This kind of gas service does not "just happen." Millions of dollars have been spent to provide it. Years of testing, research, experimenting ingenuity have been applied to its improvement.

Natural gas is not uniform in its quality—naturally. It varies over a wide range of heat content and in specific gravity. Not only do the wells in different areas produce widely different heat content, but this quality varies even in a single well during different stages of its production life. This problem is something like that of your milk man. Different herds produce different qualities of milk. Even single cows produce different qualities at different times.

The best interests of the consumer—his satisfaction, efficiency, economy—demand uniformity of quality. Every authority has agreed on that fact. This can only be accomplished by establishing a standard and adjusting by a stabilizing process to that standard. It involves "dilution," "adulteration"—the words are unfortunate. Too often their application is malicious in intent. But whatever the word used, it is of necessity a process of mixing high qualities with low qualities to bring uniform quality. It is done with milk, with many food products, with motor fuels. Some call it blending. It is stabilization of quality. It is a highly technical and scientific procedure and involves an expense justified in consumer efficiency and economy.

After realizing the advantages of standardization, or stabilization, you, Mr. and Mrs. Consumer, would not tolerate the fluctuations of the old "take it as it comes" gas supply. Your burner could not be maintained in the fine, efficient adjustment now a feature of your gas service. It would burn high, yellow and wasteful at one time and low, smelly and inadequate at another. That kind of service "jumps" the gas bill. You pay more—get less.

These things you know. You can rely on your own seeing and feeling. The proof is there in your gas burner—in your gas service results. No other fuel service can supply what you are getting now and can depend upon getting in your good gas service.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1941.

Cleveland baseball fans, attempting to explain the situation, feel quite sure that the now popular V has no reference to Vitt.

Hitlerites are complaining that Russians are not fighting fair—and possibly the Nazis neglected to send them a book of rules.

It may interest some folks to learn that conservation of cloth may make it necessary to abolish the double-breasted coat—but thus far there has been no rush for the remaining supply.

Time To Cut Non-Defense Costs

TAX PAYING is to become much more serious business for Americans than it has ever been before, under provisions of the new federal tax law that has been passed by the house and is now being considered by the senate.

Not only will small and large income taxpayers find their year's total running considerably higher but there will be a flat tax of $5 on every automobile, double the present tax on a new car purchase, and a flock of new or increased excise taxes.

Personal deductions and allowance for dependents remain unchanged in the bill as passed by the house, and the provision requiring joint return of incomes of husband and wife was eliminated, but all whose earnings are within the income tax paying range—above $800 if single and above $2.000 if married—will be required to pay considerably more next March 15 than they did a year ago.

But even the increases provided for in the house bill will be insufficient to meet requirements and a part of the senate's consideration of the measure will be to find additional sources of revenue.

It cannot be doubted that defense and non-defense expenditures of federal government have already reached tremendous figures—in fact the non-defense costs of maintaining the Roosevelt administration had become impressive long before defense became an important item.

While there is practically universal sanction of intelligently and honestly administered defense expenditures to whatever extent may be deemed necessary, there is still a feeling among taxpayers that radical paring of non-defense expenditures is an obligation of government which is specially important at this time—locally and in the state, as well as nationally.

Married Teachers Can Hold Jobs

MARRIAGE is no longer to result in the discharge of women school teachers, according to a ruling by Attorney General Herbert, under the new teacher tenure law which becomes effective September 1.

It is the attorney general's opinion that even if a board of education has a rule against married women continuing as teachers it cannot refuse to issue a continuing contract to teachers who meet all other requirements, and that no teacher can be forced to retire before reaching the age of seventy, except on grounds prescribed for dismissing a continuing contract teacher, principal among which are immorality and inefficiency.

As passed by the legislature in June, the teachers' tenure law provides that continuing, or life contracts must be tendered to all teachers who on August 31 have completed five years of satisfactory service in school districts of more than 800 enrollment.

The subject of teachers' tenure, intended to stabilize employment in the teaching field, has been up before the legislature regularly for the past twenty years, under sponsorship of teachers' organizations, but it was not until this year that such a law was enacted.

The effect of this increase in state control over local school systems will be watched with interest—and a hope that it will meet what must be its intended purpose of increasing teaching efficiency.

Disposing of Garbage and Rubbish

THE TRUTH, held to be self evident, that "all men are created equal," sometimes seems to clash with such a strange circumstance as that to which Mayor Locke called attention yesterday.

The mayor says that complaints have been made that some people dump garbage and rubbish along city streets and in public parks.

This brings up the point of "equality" of the persons who commit such a filthy nuisance and raises the question, "Equal to what?"

Surely they are not "equal" to decent citizens, who recognize and respect the rights of other people.

It is not uncommon to notice, or hear about, packages of garbage being dumped along rural roads, or near farm houses, and it seems odd that in a country where personal liberty is assumed to be safely entrusted to everybody, there are still some people who seem entirely unfitted to the environment of a civilized community.

Mayor Locke says there is evidence against some of the offenders—that "several parties have even acknowledged it." If that is the case there should be arrests, penalties imposed, and full publicity given the identity of these community misfits.

Decline In Tuberculosis

THIRTY YEARS ago tuberculosis was the first cause of human death. Today, in the United States, it ranks eighth. The last decade alone has seen a decline of 37 per cent in the mortality rate of this once most dreaded disease of all mankind.

Doctor R. H. Sundberg, in his annual report as president of the California Tuberculosis association, pointed out that while spectacular gains have been made against tuberculosis, it would be extremely unwise to take victory for granted. He observed that: "Tuberculosis is still one of the major causes of death, especially in the younger age groups . . . the incidence of the disease might easily increase again. In the present world crisis, for example, one may properly be concerned over the possible effect of post-war conditions. . . . This means continued segregation of infectious cases, earlier diagnosis, particularly through mass surveys and follow-up of contacts, and more adequate treatment of discovered cases before clinical activity develops."

The successful battle being carried on against tuberculosis should demonstrate conclusively to the average layman the ability of the American medical profession, and the responsive willingness with which that profession applies its ability, regardless of class, color, creed or financial position.

CLOSING THE PANTRY WINDOW

Russians Using Retreat Strategy

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

Russian generals are as good retreaters as ever. American military men were somewhat apprehensive for awhile that Slav commanders had lost their retrogressive cunning under the Communistic regime. Now they say they're completely reassured.

Remember the Russo-Japanese war in 1904 and 1905?

The Japs won all the stand-up fights but General Kuropatkin retreated them off the map. One day along would come the news that the islanders had scored a tremendous victory, had a whole army of Russians bottled up tight and were going to annihilate them shortly.

About 24 hours later tidings would arrive that Kuropatkin had pulled off a masterly retreat, had wiggled his entire force out through the Japs encirclement and was fixed to put it into action in some new place. The Japs would take after the retreaters, catch up with them, lick them again, start to exterminate them bodily — and once more they'd evaporate into another masterly retreat.

This went on, over and over again, the full length of quite a long war.

The Japs finally got the decision, but it wasn't anything more than a decision; it wasn't a knockout. President Teddy Roosevelt offered his services as referee. Tsar Nicholas II, then still on the job, had a near-revolution on his hands in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad). He wanted to be able to attend to it in peace, without the distraction of Kuropatkin's everlasting retreating in Siberia, and consequently accepted Teddy's offer.

Japs Win Peace.

The result was a nominal finding in the Japs' favor. If Kuropatkin had been left, though, to retreat to a finish, the probabilities are that he'd have retreated the islanders to death and defeat.

It was the same way during World War I. The Slavs ultimately got tired of retreating and quit, being, most likely, more interested in their revolution at home. But if it hadn't been for that, it's a safe bet they'd have retreated the kaiser into a considerably earlier flight to Holland.

The idea's this:

Individually, the Russians are good enough scrappers, but they don't seem to have the right kind of leadership for a successful offensive campaign. Yet they do have a leadership with a positive genius at squirming out of a tight spot. And their country's so big that there always are plenty of places for them to squirm to. In the process of squirming, doubtless they suffer a percentage of losses, but they're so numerous that a few casualties don't signify to them appreciably.

So, when Herr Hitler hopped on the Bolsheviki, all democratic strategy exclaimed, with one voice:

"Gosh, we hope those Muscovites don't fight to the last gasp. We hope they'll retreat and retreat and retreat, drawing those Heinies in, engulfing them, closing in behind them, guerilla-izing them, keeping them swamped indefinitely."

Fear For Russia.

There was a good bit of democratic apprehension that the Slavs wouldn't wage this kind of a campaign. It was an apprehension based on observation of the Stalinist grab at Finland. "If such a whale of a country as Russia had such a dickens of a time in licking a tiny pewee like Finland," strategists asked, "what chance does it stand of stalling Germany as much as overnight?"

Now it's dawning on the strategists what the difference is.

Russia's Finnish campaign necessarily was an offensive campaign. The mass with the Nazis, on the other hand, is defensive—defend awhile and fall back; extend the enemy until his lines are attenuated and then pinch him off at his outermost end.

The democracies don't care if the Nazis do get to Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev. The closer they get to them, the worse they'll be involved.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, Aug. 7, 1921.

One hundred and 25 Mansfielders went on Pennsylvania railroad excursion to Detroit.

Pauline Frederick in "Salvage" was screen attraction at the Majestic.

John Sebastian entertained friends at a duck dinner at his home near Savannah lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilmore returned from trip to New York city.

Jeremiah Will, 75, died at his home near Lakeville.

Mrs. Katherine Algue left for San Francisco to attend W. C. T. U. convention.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, August 7, 1936.

Mrs. Cora Fleck, 73 died in General hospital.

Rev. and Mrs. Grover E. Swoyer and daughter, Rose, left for a three-weeks trip through Pennsylvania.

Automobiles operated by James Pugh and Clarence Walters collided at East Fifth and North Diamond streets.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tucker, 151 North Mulberry street.

Mr. and Mrs. Tolman Burns and son, Durward, left to spend a week at the lakes.

Listen World!

'And the Walls Fell'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THREE—DOTS—AND A—DASH. . . . The Morse code signal for "Victory" . . . they're racing across Europe in a rising chorus . . . sending their secret message from Holland to Belgium, from Belgium to France, from France to Norway or Denmark . . . on and on—

"VICTORY!"

Captive heels that shuffled listlessly yesterday, are tapping that coded word out today on the pavements of every conquered country. Hands that lagged over the keyboards of hated alien invaders, are rapping them out in eager signalling. School children whistle them . . . engineers and taxi drivers toot them . . . housewives beat them out on their mixing bowls. Even the street walkers, so they say, whisper that beautiful, deadly symbol before they will accept a lover.

And, dawn after dawn, the mysterious "V" appears scrawled on country fences, city walls —even on the dread headquarters of the Gestapo. For V stands for Victory, also—and the hope of Victory is rising like a terrible, glorious chant in every heart in shamed and shackled Europe.

THE UNBELIEVABLE IS HAPPENING. BY A TAPPED SIGNAL. A SCRAWLED INITIAL—AND THE FAITH BEHIND THEM. IMPRISONED MEN ARE DARING TO HOPE THEY MAY BREAK THE MIGHT OF MECHANIZED MONSTERS!

THE "V" CAMPAIGN IS ON!

"But it's silly," you say, sadly. "No one can beat Hitler by tapping out a code signal or scrawling an initial on a door. Faith's a great thing, but you can't expect it to perform miracles." Can't you? I wonder. And think back—

* * *

THEY'D wandered so long since they left Egypt, those fleeing Israelites. Month after month, year after year, they had plodded across the desert sands until hope was shrivelled in them.

It was true—they had seen wonders in the past. A great sea parting before them, so they could pass . . . then rushing together to engulf their enemies. A rock, gushing sweet water when their tongues were black with thirst . . . the earth white with mysterious manna when starvation stalked. But that was long ago. Now, surely, they had come to the end of their trail—and their courage—for now they faced the dread, walled city of Jericho and the fury of Jericho's armed soldiers who might, so easily, destroy them in a day.

And what had they—God's lost, despairing children — to defend themselves? No arms. No trained lions and elephants. Nothing. Only a handful of dying men, waiting for the massacre.

Yet, even as they wept, the Voice spoke. Suddenly—like a song of hope. And the Voice told them to forget their fear . . . they did not need arms . . . they had but to do as He said.

For six days they were to march about the city—all the fighting men—once on each day—with seven priests bearing, before the sacred ark, seven trumpets made or rams' horn. And, on the seventh day, they should encompass the city seven times. Then, having done this, the priests should blow a long blast upon all the horns . . . and the people should shout with a great cry . . . AND THE WALLS OF THE CITY WOULD FALL DOWN.

And so it was done!

Despite their trepidation, they still listened . . . even though they doubted, they had obeyed, followed out the command with shaking hearts, giving all they had. And when the moment came, the thing had happened. The walls fell! The city was theirs—theirs with all its wealth and power and new opportunity. They were safe — because they had dared to hope—dared to believe!

The "V" Campaign is on! You say it won't amount to anything . . . it's just a fantical movement . . . miracles don't happen nowadays.

I wonder. And think back—

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Selectees Dislike Soldier's Life, Few Comprehend Nation's Peril

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Most attentive listeners in the crowded senate galleries during the debate on retaining selectees were little groups of sunburned, khaki-clad young men from the draft army.

On leave from nearby camps, they took time out to visit the august chamber and listen to the discussion that was deciding their future.

To find out what they, themselves, think about being kept in the army more than one year, the Merry-Go-Rounders interviewed one hundred of them as they left the senate galleries.

All of those interviewed were from eastern states and represented practically every branch of the army. They were asked: "What do you think about the bill you have just heard debated?" Here are the results:

Almost without exception they said they wanted to return to civilian life at the end of one year's service.

About 30 per cent were very emphatic they should be "let out"; repeating Senator Wheeler's phrase that the government was "breaking faith."

The remaining 70 per cent, while desirous of returning home, were not insistent. About one-third of this group volunteered that they were willing to abide by the action of congress.

* * *

Don't Understand Danger.

1. Soldering has no appeal. The army definitely has not sold itself to them as a way of life. With one possible exception, no selectee indicated that he would re-enlist voluntarily if discharged.

They had no complaints about their treatment. Food was good, they were not overworked, some were in better physical condition than ever before. But soldering just wasn't popular.

Not one of these youngsters seemed aware of what was happening in the world; that their country might be in danger; that they should make some sacrifice for their country.

Said a stocky Signal corps man: "If we see that things are urgent, we're willing to stay, but who knows? The president says they are urgent. Wheeler and Lindbergh say they aren't. Until they can decide, they ought to let us out."

* * *

"These Guys Outside."

SAID an air corps corporal: "These guys outside who are making good dough and striking for more while they keep us in the army—that's the thing that bothers me."

"There are plenty of men who like the army," said a cavalryman. "Why not let them volunteer? And besides, what are they going to do with all the new men coming in? They won't have enough room for them.

Said a pugnacious Brooklynite: "They made a deal with us, and they ought to keep it. You can write this—if they'll let you—we're pretty hot about this business of keeping us in the army longer than they promised, pretty damned hot about it."

* * *

The Russians Have It.

THIS does not mean that these boys are unpatriotic. But it does mean that the U. S. army so far has neglected the most important conclusion to be drawn from the lesson of France and the lesson of Russia.

In France, battalions, companies, entire regiments surrendered almost en masse. The world was astounded. The French army had been heralded as the best in the world. Its officers had been trained for years. Its equipment, while not as good as the Nazis, was the next best in Europe.

Yet the French army collapsed in eleven short days.

Frenchmen who went through that catastrophic surrender now tell us that more important than Hitler's panzer divisions, more important than stuka dive-bombers, was French morale. French troops did not want to fight.

The country was torn by dissension. Men in the trenches had no idea why they were fighting. If they knew anything, it was that they were fighting for the Comite des Forges (Steel Trust) or the Deux Cent Families (the 200 families who ruled the Bank of France.)

So France fell. One year later an entirely different story comes from Russia.

There' a huge, unwieldy, green army facing the pick of Hitler's mechanized veterans, has retreated, but not surrendered. At times isolated and hopelessly cut off, Russian troops have continued fighting—fighting so desperately that the Germans have complained that they did not obey the rules of war.

Obviously Russian troops have been defending something which they cherished. They have had what the French lacked—morale.

* * *

We Don't Have It—Yet.

AND to date, judging by our poll of selectees, plus the war department's own frank fears, the American army also lacks morale. They have no idea that the country is in danger. They have little realization why they were drafted.

We have spent a year building up cantonments with most of the comforts of home. We have provided better than average food, good clothing and fair equipment. But we have neglected morale—the most important thing of all.

Nine months ago, this column published a series on lack of morale inside the draft army. Nine months ago, Mr. Roosevelt addressed an inquiry to Chief of Staff General Marshall, got the reply that the situation was OK. About the same time, Harry Harrison, who ran the Smileage Book campaign for camp morale and entertainment during the last war, proposed a new program, but was rebuffed.

In other words, with the country facing an urgent crisis in both the Atlantic and the Pacific, the war department has given the boys no conception of what is happening in the world, has made no attempt to show them why they are called upon to serve. It has completely fallen down on the one big weapon which makes a modern army fight.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—These are the things I love . . . The song by the same name . . . A gun that was picked up on the field after the second battle of Manassas . . . The blurred, unreal image of Manhattan through the river haze from the top of a Hudson river ferry at night . . . Newsreel theaters . . . The "feel" of a room that is lined with good books . . . The nutty fragrance of fresh roasted coffee . . . Lynn Fontanne reading "The White Cliffs" . . . Lynn Fontanne doing anything . . . Lynn Fontanne.

These are the things I don't love . . . The Hut-Sut song . . . Radio announcers who speak of "see-yutes" of clothes when they mean suits . . . Parades . . . Drug store coffee . . . Novelists with a candid camera complex who think you won't get it unless they "tell all." . . . People who stand too close to you when they talk to you . . . Professional southerners . . . Child actors . . . Cigars . . . Hearty back-slappers . . . Broadway styles, where men wear their pants too short, and too narrow about the cuff . . . Broadway, where men wear their pants too high . . . The waists of their pants come up to their armpits . . . These are just some of the things I don't love.

MISS J. B., of Jefferson City, Missouri, sends in a note . . . "You like the American State Guide series, do you? . . . Wait till you see 'Missouri'. . . . It's truly a honey . . ."

I will go further than that and say it is one of the two or three best in the entire series . . . The Guide to the "Show Me" state is a lucky-bag of fascinating facts and pictures . . . But then, what else could you expect from a state that was born on the Mississippi, grew up playing with sternwheelers, and produced Jesse James, Mark Twain, and the St. Louis Cardinals? . . . If I ever want to write anything about Missouri I won't have to go there for color . . . I'll just pick up this guide . . . It's all there, between the covers of as important a book as has come out this year. Congratulations.

A Farmer's Diary

Oldest Living Thing

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A MAN who likes to fish told me of a massive tree that sheltered him during a summer storm. "It's no fish story—that tree is the oldest living thing, I'll bet, in the state of Ohio," he said. "It's sixteen feet across and was once 48 feet around. It stands in a farmer's pasture near an abandoned mill race, where there used to be a covered bridge."

"It makes a tall story," I suggested. "Are you willing to go along and show it to me?"

"Yes, indeed,"—he was as excited as a boy.

Today we went. He had a long twine string in his pocket, and a brand new yard stick was thrown into the rear of the car. The distance was not great. We parked near a modern steel bridge that spans the river, where the covered wooden bridge used to be. He pointed out a forked sycamore that grew very near the bank.

As we walked toward the river in the direction of the tree, I was surprised to find it taking on more massive proportions, with each step. From some distance, it appeared like any ordinary tree. It's like some people I have known, I mused—the closer you come to know them, the greater they are—and the more they shelter you.

There it stood, a giant shell, hollow for perhaps 17 feet, with the main trunk entirely gone. A dozen people could have stood within the cavity. Above, the two great prongs of trunk rose to the height of an average forest tree. I stepped the distance from one side of the cavity to the other and found it indeed 16 feet in diameter. I went a little distance off and as I spoke the echo of my voice returned to me.

If those sensitive, woody tissues could have recorded all the sounds of the centuries since it was a sapling—if some strange modern instrument could be found to reveal its secrets—what an insight this old tree might give to the history of the continent. Here would be recorded the periodic storms and floods of near a thousand years; the quarrels of early wild beasts; the love calls of wood folk and red men; the stealthy movements of native hunters.

This tree might have been old when Columbus discovered America—a thriving giant when Napoleon was at Waterloo; a member of the primitive, murmuring forest on our first Independence day.

Now, a headless shattered wreck, it still clings tenaciously to life in our troubled age, and even the oldest inhabitant of that vicinity can scarcely remember a change in it. It has always been the same—if no destructive storm passes by, it may live on for another century.

THEATERS

Battle Of Wits.

The tug of war between an eloping bride and an aviator, who grounded his plane in the desert, furnishes some lively moments in "The Bride Came C. D. D.," showing at the Ohio with Bette Davis and James Cagney in the leading roles. Harry Davenport, as a ghost town innkeeper, is a spectator at some of these battles and the cast includes Eugene Pallette and Stuart Erwin. Bette plays a wealthy daughter of the rich, who is bound for Las Vegas with a bandleader to be married. Her plans are interrupted when the aviator, hired to fly the couple to the marriage license bureau, decides to return the girl to her father.

Homey American Story.

The homey aspects of American life are portrayed in Jean Hersholt's picture "They Meet Again," playing at the Madison. Laid in a small town the play concerns Hersholt's attempts, as the popular character, "Dr. Christian," to clear a bank teller of a charge of misappropriating funds and also to restore happiness to a motherless young girl whose health has been impaired by her father's misfortune. Dorothy Lovett and Robert Baldwin play the romantic leads and Anne Bennett has the part of the young girl. The latter's singing voice is heard for the first time in this production. Hugh Herbert is starred in "Hello Sucker," the second attraction.

Mystery Thriller.

Career Comedy.

"Model Wife," showing at the Park, presents Joan Blondell and Dick Powell in the lead roles of a wedded couple working in an ultra-smart gown shoppe where marriage in the personnel is taboo. The couple guard their secret until the son of the boss falls in love with the wife. Lee Bowman plays the latter role and the cast includes Charlie Ruggles, Ruth Donnelly and Billy Gilbert. The story of a crusading young newspaper man who fights to clean up working conditions in a coal mine is told in Richard Arlen's new picture "Black Diamonds," the second attraction. Andy Devine is in the cast.

Romantic Comedy.

Filmed against the background of New York's busy streets, "Two In a Taxi," opening Friday at the Majestic, deals with a taxi driver's efforts to buy a little business and marry a blonde model. Anita Louise and Russell Hayden have the leads and the cast includes Noah Beery, jr., and Dick Purcell. This is Hayden's first role minus a sombrero and gun always a part of his equipment in the "Hopalong Cassidy" series in which he appeared as "Lucky." Tim Holt has the starring role in "Six Gun Gold" the co-attraction.

LET YOUR BURNER TELL YOU HOW GOOD THE GAS IS!

That hot, blue flame on your range, under your water heater—wherever you want heat flexible, controllable, dependable, efficient—that, tells the fact of good gas service. You can see it with your own eyes. You can feel it with your own hands. It is undeniable in results—cooking results, hot water results, refrigeration results, heating results, thousands upon thousands of the most exacting industrial results—and low cost results. No other fuel service available to human use has so many advantages at the same low cost.

This kind of gas service does not "just happen." Millions of dollars have been spent to provide it. Years of testing, research, experimenting ingenuity have been applied to its improvement.

Natural gas is not uniform in its quality—naturally. It varies over a wide range of heat content and in specific gravity. Not only do the wells in different areas produce widely different heat content, but this quality varies even in a single well during different stages of its production life. This problem is something like that of your milk man. Different herds produce different qualities of milk. Even single cows produce different qualities at different times.

The best interests of the consumer—his satisfaction, efficiency, economy—demand uniformity of quality. Every authority has agreed on that fact. This can only be accomplished by establishing a standard and adjusting by a stabilizing process to that standard. It involves "dilution," "adulteration"—the words are unfortunate. Too often their application is malicious in intent. But whatever the word used, it is of necessity a process of mixing high qualities with low qualities to bring uniform quality. It is done with milk, with many food products, with motor fuels. Some call it blending. It is stabilization of quality. It is a highly technical and scientific procedure and involves an expense justified in consumer efficiency and economy.

After realizing the advantages of standardization, or stabilization, you, Mr. and Mrs. Consumer, would not tolerate the fluctuations of the old "take it as it comes" gas supply. Your burner could not be maintained in the fine, efficient adjustment now a feature of your gas service. It would burn high, yellow and wasteful at one time and low, smelly and inadequate at another. That kind of service "jumps" the gas bill. You pay more—get less.

These things you know. You can rely on your own seeing and feeling. The proof is there in your gas burner—in your gas service results. No other fuel service can supply what you are getting now and can depend upon getting in your good gas service.

REDS BATTLE GERMAN DRIVE ON LENINGRAD

Hitler's Legions Launch Two-Prong Push on Northern Soviet City.

ma road or move further westward."

The warning apparently referred to a possible Japanese move into Thailand from bases in French Indo-China or an attempt to invade China's southwest province of Yunnan, through which the Burma road feeds supplies to Chinese armies in the north.

An authoratative British war review in London said that Thailand was expected to resist any Japanese encroachment and that British aid to the Thais would be conditioned by the American response to the situation.

The same source declared that while the Germans still held the initiative in the 47-day-old Russian campaign, the Nazi high command was gravely concerned over "the slowness of the advance and the very heavy casualties."

"Halted at Smolensk, facing Moscow, the Germans are turning southeast from Bel Tservok, in the Ukraine, in a push toward the Caucosus," the British report said.

"There has been no great change in the situation in the last 24 hours.

"It is increasingly clear that on all other fronts the third great German offensive has been held and that progress in the Ukraine is very slow."

Hitler's high command asserted that German losses were 'moderate" compared with the "extraordinary high" casualties suffered by the Russians—the latter estimated by DNB, the official German News Agency, at 8,000,000.

Louis P. Lochner, chief of the Associated Press Berlin bureau, now inspecting the Finnish front said Finnish officers considered the Russians well equipped but weak in aviation and no longer capable of large scale counter-offensive in the north.

German bombers raided Moscow for the 14th night attack but Russians said they were unsuccessful. Some civilian casualties were reported.

The German radio said the central airdrome in the Moscow suberb of Tushimo was attacked.

In the far east Japan declared British and American concern over her intentions toward Thailand was unwarranted. The Japanese board of information said reports that Japan was threatening the kingdom tended to harm feelings and maintained she wanted only friendly relations with Thailand.

The U. S. government, it was reported in Washington, saw Japanese pressure on Thailand as part of an Axis plan to control the oceans. Part of the plan would be German occupation of naval bases in French colonial possessions.

Britons, meanwhile, talked of an offensive action by their growing middle east army fattened with recently arrived planes, tanks and munitions from the U. S. Some observers expected a move through Iran to help Russia protect her Causasian oil fields. Others suggested a new attack on Libya was in the making.

The British air offensive ground on with night attacks centered on Frankfurt, Mannheim and Karlsruhe; the Germans countered with raids over Britain which London said injured a small number of persons and caused slight damage after a small number of planes reached east and southeast England.

German Losses Called 'Moderate.'

BERLIN—(U.P.)—German quarters insisted today that Nazi casualties in the Russian offensive have been "kept within previous limits" despite reports circulating in Berlin creating the impression that Nazi claims have only been possible at a high cost in killed and wounded.

Communiques of the high command have not estimated German losses on the eastern front although specific figures on Soviet losses have been given. A special communique on the Smolensk battle which is said to have been concluded with a Nazi victory called German losses "moderate."

For several days reports have been in circulation in the German capital which give the impression that Nazi advances can now be won only at a high cost in casualties.

RAF Bombs Airports In Germany, France

LONDON — (INS) — Swarms of British bombers, flying at tremendous altitudes, rocked the coast of France again today after night squadrons had blasted the western Reich and enemy airdromes in France in fierce raids.

The latest assault apparently was aimed at Calais, Dunkerque and Ostend.

During the night, the RAF dispatched American-built planes on a mission of destruction over German airdromes in northern France. Bombs were dropped on runways and several hangers were set afire. The attack continued until daylight, and at dawn, fires were observed still blazing around Calais.

See Closer U. S.-Red Co-operation.

MOSCOW —(U.P.)— Pravda, organ of the Communist party, said today that the groundwork has been laid for fruitful co-operation between the United States and Russia in the task of mutual national defense and destruction of the enemy which threatens "the security and liberty of all nations."

"The Soviet people," Pravda said, "have greeted with unquestioned satisfaction the establishment of a groundwork for fruitful collaboration between the Soviet union and the United States, based on a community of interests and answering the needs of the national defense of both countries.

U. S. Pledges War Supplies to Thailand.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The United States and Great Britain have pledged war supplies to Thailand with which to resist Japanese aggression, informed quarters said today.

The pledge served to emphasize their new warnings to Japan.

In parallel representations to the Thailand government, the United states and Britain urged it to take a firm stand against Japanese demands for military bases, it was said.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Secretary of State Cordell Hull warned Japan yesterday that any move infringing the independence of Thailand would place a grave strain on Japan's relations with them.

(An official spokesman in Tokyo rejected these warnings as "unwarranted and created from their own conjectures." He said Japan's relations with Thailand had been peaceful and "Thailand is willing to continue such relations.")

Japs Want to Keep Friendly Relations.

TOKYO —(AP)— Japan wants to maintain friendly relations with Thailand and considers unwarranted yesterday's statements by U. S. Secretary of State Hull and British Foreign Secretary Eden of concern over her intentions, the Japanese board of information said today.

(Hull said Japan's intentions toward Thailand were of increasing concern to the United States and Eden warned a Japanese move would bring about "a most serious situation between Great Britain and Japan.")

The board charged that reports in U. S. and British newspapers indicating Japan was threatening Thailand tended "to worsen the feeling of the Japanese toward Britain and the United States."

It declared at the same time that press dispatches from the Far East reported British forces in Malaya may occupy Thia bases.

The Japan Times and Advertiser, controlled by the foreign office, said the British were accusing Japan of aggressive intentions toward Thailand to mask their own plans.

Believe Axis Seeks Control of Seas.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States government, it was learned today, believes that Japan's pressure bid for control of Thailand is part of a well-patterned Axis plan to seize control of the oceans and thereby dominate the world.

The latest Japanese moves were described as dovetailing perfectly with Germany's demands on Vichy for military and naval bases in French colonial possessions, particularly at Dakar.

All evidence available, an informed source stated, points to a coordinated drive by Germany to control all strategic bases in the Atlantic, while Japan seizes similar objectives in the Pacific.

"When—and if—Germany and Japan accomplish that ambitious objective," a ranking official said, "the Axis powers could join forces across the southern oceans and dominate the seas, isolating the Americas for a co-ordinated attack from the Pacific and Atlantic."

To win that "stranglehold on the world," it was pointed out, the Germans and Japanese must first seize from the British and French strong points that dominate the world's seaways, and officials said that the aggressive plans now in motion have that objective.

British Prepare for Burma Emergency

SINGAPORE — (INS) — Great Britain's Far Eastern high command today announced completion of all preparations for an emergency.

An official communique issued by the Singapore ministry of information said:

"In Burma and South China, all preparations are ready to smash any attempt by the Japanese to cut the Burma road or move westward."

Inclusion of South China as well as Burma in the British defense preparations was in line with previous announcements from London and Chungking that British and Chinese forces would operate in collaboration against any Japanese aggression aimed at cutting the Burma road.

Is Roosevelt Meeting Churchill In Atlantic?

Persistent reports from both Washington and London indicate that President Roosevelt, left, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, right, heads of the two great democracies of the world, will meet, or are meeting somewhere on the Atlantic ocean.

Reasons given for this belief are that unusual secrecy surrounds the president's "vacation" cruise aboard the presidential yacht Potomac, top. It has been announced that Churchill will be absent from an important war debate in parliament; nothing is known of the whereabouts of Churchill or Harry Hopkins, F. D. R.'s lease-lend representative, who has just returned from Moscow to London, and the chief executive has in the past expressed a desire to meet the British leader.

planned to go to Manchester tomorrow, it was understood.

Stark was said to be out of the city on leave, but the navy said it had no knowledge of his whereabouts. The army gave a similar reply to queries concerning Marshall and Arnold.

The highest government officials often leave the capital for vacations or official trips when the president is out of the city when there is no possibility that they will be needed for conferences at the White House.

The official who disclosed the desire of Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill to talk personally about the problems of Anglo-American collaboration against the Axis, said he had no actual knowledge as to whether the conference had taken place or was about to be held.

Officials here and in London have neither confirmed nor denied reports that the meeting was about to be held or had been held.

There was still no news from London of Churchill's whereabouts. The only affirmative information was the disclosure that Harry Hopkins, Mr. Roosevelt's lend-lease co-ordinator, could be found with Churchill—wherever that may be.

A naval news report from the presidential yacht Potomac made no specific mention of Mr. Roosevelt which created speculation that perhaps he had transferred to a warship to be sped to a conference with Churchill.

Marina, now 17 months old. The death leaves Premier Mussolini with four children, Countess Edda Ciano, 30, wife of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano; Anna Maria, 11, Vittorio, 24, and Romano, 13.

The Italian radio announcer, breaking the news to the nation, said that Bruno would be "considered as having fallen for his country." He always had "lived dangerously," the broadcaster said, calling him "one of the most representative members of Fascist youth."

He showed "a high sense of sacrifice as a volunteer fighter in Spain's anti-Bolshevik war," the announcer added. In that conflict, Bruno won medals for valor.

Bruno also piloted planes for Italy in the Ethiopian war in 1935-36 and the current European war. Little had been known of his activities in the present war until the disclosure that he had died as a test pilot.

Then it was told that he had been in action against France on the western front last year, in the Mediterranean theater, and on the Albanian and Greek fronts.

When Bruno was 10 he was making frequent flights, his hands itching for the controls. He obtained his pilot's license when he was 16.

When Facist Italy started on her path toward empire in 1935 Bruno and his brother, Vittorio, volunteered and became officers in East Africa. Their's was a bombing-combat squadron, the Desperati.

YOUTHS HELD

Police Quiz Pair Regarding Series of Thefts.

Two Mansfield youths about 14 years old were held today by police in connection with a series of petty thefts in the northern part of the city during recent weeks.

Taken into custody yesterday, the boys were being questioned by officers in connection with the theft of a bicycle, some beer from a wholesale house, and a number of small articles from automobiles and homes.

Ralph Carroll, county juvenile officer, said authorities believe the pair may be working with a "gang" of youthful burglars in the city.

BATHER DROWNED

GENEVA — (AP) — Mrs. Evelyn Goldberg, 38, Cleveland, drowned yesterday in Lake Erie off Geneva township park.

Swimmer Proves Reports of 'Death' Greatly Exaggerated

William Richardson, Mansfield, R. D. 3, had heard it wasn't a good policy to leave his clothes on the bank when he went swimming, but he didn't know it could cause so much excitement until he tried it last night.

Richardson, a coal truck driver, accumulated considerable coal dust at work yesterday, so he decided to take a swim in a pond west of Crestline and go home to supper in clean clothing.

After his dip he made the change, leaving the soiled clothes behind. He didn't intend, however, to leave his billfold containing his driver's license and identification cards in the discarded trouser's pocket.

Richardson's oversight was discovered a little while later by some boys who investigated the contents of the billfold and decided Richardson had dived into the pond and hadn't come out. They called the Crestline officers who enlisted Deputy Sheriffs C. C. Gongwer and J. R. Hetler at Mansfield in the search for the swimmer.

Officers began their search by calling Richardson's home and when they learned he wasn't there, they prepared to haul out their grappling hooks and start dragging the pond for the body of the supposed drowning "victim."

Before the search went that far, Richardson, hearing that he was "dead," went to the sheriff's office immediately to deny that report.

"I hear you are looking for me," he said briefly as he walked in. The search ended there.

A motor corps would facilitate the work of these volunteers throughout the county and also increase production, Miss Van Gundia said, because materials could be delivered directly to their homes and the finished articles picked up when they were ready for return to chapter headquarters.

In the event of disaster the motor corps would supplement hospital ambulance facilities and transport patients to first aid stations.

To qualify for the motor corps applicants must complete a first aid course of 20 hours and agree to take lectures and demonstrations offered in highway traffic and safety in automobile mechanics and emergency repairs.

The volunteers bear the expense of car and gas.

REPORT WIFE OF VANDERBILT HEIR TO SEEK DIVORCE SOON

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt has started a divorce action against the 28-year-old millionaire turfman, charging association with two young women well-known in "cafe society" circles, and demanding a settlement running into seven figures, the New York Journal-American reported today in a copyrighted story.

The notification papers, if not already served, will be served before the end of the current week, the newspaper said. Decision to file divorce proceedings were said to have been made after family friends endeavored in vain to effect a reconciliation. Vanderbilt, heir to $20,000,000, married his wife, the former Manuela (Molly) Hudson of San Francisco, June 8, 1938.

The Journal-American story, written by Society Reporter Cholly Knickerbocker, said that their marriage had been a failure from the beginning, and that Vanderbilt previously had offered to provide handsomely for his wife and daughter if she would seek a divorce on grounds less drastic than those required in New York.

"However, when 'Molly' Vanderbilt reportedly mentioned a sum running into seven figures as the settlement she considered her due, hope for a divorce without mud-slinging faded." the newspaper said. "And papers naming the two co-respondents were drawn up."

Mrs. Vanderbilt, following a separation last December, continued to occupy the family home at Sands Point, Long Island, with daughter, Wendie, who was born March 10, 1939, at Los Angeles.

Neither Mrs. Vanderbilt nor the millionaire turfman would comment on the suit.

SULFA METHOD FOR TRACHOMA SIGHT SAVER

U. S. Indian Medical Service Develops New Effective Treatment Process.

PHOENIX, Ariz.—(U.P.)—Discovery of a treatment for trachoma, dread ey disease, that may save the sight of millions of persons all over the world, has been announced by the U. S. Indian medical service.

After eight years of intensive experiments with many types of drugs, the Indian service discovered that it could halt progress of the disease a id even cure it by the use of sulfanilamide.

The result has been relief for 35,000 Indian sufferers from the "ancient scourge," as the disease is called and for a like number of white persons afflicted with the ailment. One-third of the Navajos are sufferers.

Eight years ago the Indian service medical staff began a serious campaign of experimentation with trachoma. They discovered that the disease was caus'd by a virus and not a "bacillus granulosis" as was believed formerly.

First experiments with the use of sulfanilamide pills were made on the Rosebud reservation in South Dakota by Dr. Fred Loe, Indian service physician.

Dr. Loe took two patients who had been treated externally for several years without improvement. He gave them internal doses of sulfanilamide daily for five days until their eyes cleared up. They were discharged at the end of a month, their cases described as "arrested."

Similar treatment of 200 other Indian victims of the disease met with success. Inflamed eyes cleared up and lost their aversion to light under the treatment. Patients were cured in an average of two weeks.

The Indian service spread use of the treatment to all its reservations where sufferers were located. Many cures were achieved, first among school children and then among adults.

Until this treatment was discovered and tested, trachoma long ha.. been one of the most baffling afflictions of mankind. It affected the eyes of the peoples of Palestine, Greece, Syria, Iran, Iraq, Egypt, Thailand and French Indo-China.

Medical experts estimated that one-third of the population of China and 98 per cent of the population of Egypt had suffered the disease. The malady is prevalent in Poland, Spain and Germany. Greece suffered an epidemic of it in 1922.

HEN CONSIDERS HER MISTRESS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(U.P.)—Mrs. W. G. Maynard, of Thorsby, is beginning to feel that a woman's best friend is her chicken.

During a recent illness a pet hen came to her bed each evening, nestled into the blankets, and laid an egg. Mrs. Maynard said the routine was followed daily for two weeks, until she recovered.

Recall Farina? She's a Big Boy In the Army Now

PRESIDIO OF MONTEREY, Cal.—(U.P.)—Remember Farina, the kinky-haired little "girl" on "Our Gang" comedies of the silent movie days? Farina is in the army now.

Farina is Pvt. Allan Hoskins, Company D, 47th Quartermaster Regiment, stationed at the Presidio of Monterey.

When Claudette Colbert, visiting the Presidio, leaned from her automobile and called: "Say, don't I know you?" Hoskins told the actress only his rank and detachment.

"Why didn't you tell her you were Farina?" asked a fellow soldier.

"Well," he replied, "Farina was the name of that other guy she was thinking of—a little guy in a white dress whose contract called for more money in a week than I now make in a year. Farina's grown up.

"I'd rather she remembered me as I used to be, before the world lost its sense of humor."

IT'S BEARD TIME

LARAMIE, Wyo.—(U.P.)—Beards are the style again as Laramie's men grow stubble for the big whisker contest at the Laramie Jubilee July 9 and 10. Each entrant pays $1 fee and the jackpot will be divided between the Jubilee committee and contest winners.

PERSPIRING FEET

Go to any other good druggist today and get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil. Don't worry—this powerful penetrating oil brings such ease and comfort that you'll be able to go about your work again, happy and without that almost unbearable aching and soreness.

Rub on Emerald Oil tonight—freely; it does not stain—is economical. Money back if not satisfied. Good druggists everywhere. Muir's Cut Rate Drug Store.

STUDENTS STUDY GRAND CANYON

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz.—(U.P.)—Geology students of the Arizona State Teachers college at Flagstaff have at their disposal the largest textbook in the world—the Grand Canyon of Arizona. The canyon is 13 miles wide, 200 miles long and a mile deep.

Situated 80 miles from the school, the Grand Canyon offers evidence from every era in earth's history. According to Dr. Agnes Allen, professor of geology at the college, the canyon is the "most spectacular and readable open geology textbook on the face of this remarkable earth."

Each year, students make a two-day trip to the edge of the Colorado river where it has cut its way through the canyon. Guided by a National Park Service naturalist, they descend to the canyon's lowest levels where the oldest rocks known to science may be found.

Personal To Fat Girls

Now you may slim down your face and figure without starvation dieting or backbreaking exercises. Just eat sensibly and take Marmola under the conditions and according to directions on the package.

Marmola Tablets have been sold to the public for more than thirty years. More than twenty million boxes have been distributed during that period.

Marmola is not a cure-all. Marmola is only for adult fat persons whose fatness is caused by a thyroid deficiency (hypothyroidism) but who are otherwise normal and healthy. We do not make any diagnosis as that is the function of your physician, who must be consulted for that purpose. Why not try to lose those ugly, uncomfortable pounds the Marmola way? Get a box of Marmola today from your druggist.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

First Aid to Sore Eyes—Lavoptik

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!
Peplessness Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.
The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.
Low blood count oft times may mean you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.
Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles when they have been weakened by simple anemia. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. 49c.

Mansfield Draftees Meet Ohio Chiefs, Receive Housewives at Farewell Party

More than 50 Richland county youths leaving for Fort Hayes for their final examination before induction into the army as selective service men were entertained at a "going away" party last night at the American Legion home. In the picture at the left, two draftees receive sewing kits from Kay Gerber while Mary Jane Bellore stands at the right with testaments which were also given the youths. In the right picture, Col. C. W. Goble, head of the selective service organization in Ohio, greets Edwin Stima, Shelby, R. D. 4, one of the draftees. Goble spoke previously at meeting of draft board members from surrounding counties.

SUNNYVALE, Cal. —(U.P.)— Zilda Viera Bem proudly paid her application fee for her second papers with 500 pennies. She told naturalization authorities she had started collecting them upon receipts of her first papers two years ago.

Holds Offensive Fliers Have Advantage Over Defenders

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.— (INS) — Offensive aviators have an advantage over defenders because the invaders have been flying high for some time and have become adjusted, according to Dr. H. T. Henshaw, consulting physician of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

Dr. Henshaw outlined his views at a recent Indiana University Medical School post-graduate course.

"When the detectors announce the approach of a fleet of enemy flyers, the defensive pilots must jump into their planes and ascend at terrific speeds," he explained. "This produces not only physical, but mental problems. The defensive flyer, rising rapidly into rarified atmospheres, may develop air embolism, or pockets of air in the blood stream that cannot be eliminated normally. He is affected mentally, developing a sensation akin to alcoholic intoxication that may cause him to become careless.

"Pilots and gunners, who become excited as a fight approaches, may begin holding their breath involuntarily, or they may begin panting with excitement. In either case, the mental balance is affected and the plane crews are apt to make serious mistakes. They may, for example, become careless about using the oxygen chambers and, at high altitudes, this can be as fatal as a blast from an enemy ship."

Dr. Henshaw also said that the RAF has fought air embolism dangers by subjecting crews on the ground to vigorous exercise. While the aviators are exercising, they are breathing pure oxygen and thus eleminate excessive normal air in the blood, which causes embolisms through expansion in rarified atmosphere.

OGDEN, Utah —(U.P.)— Southern Pacific railroad publicists long have pointed to the Lucin cutoff across Great Salt Lake as a major attraction on their Ogden-San Francisco route. But a new passenger reaction has them puzzled. One traveler lurched from a train to report that watching mountainous waves on the 40-mile lake crossing had made him seasick.

BELLVILLE GIRL AND MANSFIELD MAN MARRY

Miss Martha Belle Wade and Dale Claypool United In Marriage July 27 at Methodist Church In Rossville, Ga.

BEFORE the altar of the McFarland Memorial Methodist church on Sunday morning, July 27, Miss Martha Belle Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ruckman of Bellville and Private Dale Claypool of Mansfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Claypool of Mt. Gilead, exchanged nuptial vows in Rossville, Ga. Rev. F. F. Wampler officiated at the single ring service.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white dotted swiss with a shirred bodice and sweetheart neckline. Her bridal bouquet was composed of orchid lilies tied with pink satin ribbon. Her only jewelry was a gold locket and chain which belonged to her grandmother.

Miss Virginia Kuhn of Shelby was bridesmaid and Private Robert Boreman of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., was best man.

Mrs. Claypool is a graduate of Bellville high school and of the Mansfield General hospital nurses' training school. She is now employed at the Mansfield hospital. Mr. Claypool was graduated from Mt. Gilead high school and has been stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., in army training.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the Reed hotel in Rossville for a wedding breakfast. Following Mr. Claypool's training they will reside in Mansfield.

Sorority Group Fete Miss Logan At Andersons

Members of the Gamma chapter, Tri Gamma sorority, feted Miss Eileen Logan, bride-elect at a lovely party last evening at the home of Miss Susan Anderson, Western avenue. Associate hostesses were Mrs. Donald Spayde, Mrs. Leonard Segar, Miss Mary Garver, of Mansfield, and Mrs John McCabe, nee Marianne Springer of Hattiesburg, Miss.

The evening was spent in making a bride's book and the guests presented the honoree with a shower of kitchen gifts An electrical gift was given to Miss Logan by the hostesses. The shower presents were found under a large sprinkling can in the color scheme of pink and aqua.

The same theme was carried out when refreshments were served at a late hour. The twelve guests were seated at small tables which were centered with small sprinkling cans filled with mixed summer flowers. Dainty favors of the little cans were given to the guests.

Tonight at Middle park members of the Beta chapter, Tri Gamma sorority, will honor her with a party.

Many Careers Now Open to Women

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The straws which tell how the wind blows persuade me to write this little homily.

A correspondent who has made two disastrous marraiges culminating in divorce writes to ask if it would be advisable to marry a man eight years younger than she is. The man is 23 and he is so head over heels in love with this lady that he is willing to legally adopt her two children by her former marriages.

The young man's salary is not large, and if the marriage takes place there will be a bit of high-powered arithmetic to keep the family going on the scale the willing bride expects.

She wants a good apartment in a good neighborhood, so that her little daughters will make the right social contacts. She's willing for them to go to public schools, but she wants them to have dancing lessons where they'll meet the "right sort." And she confides she doesn't like housekeeping and is a poor cook.

The 23-year-old boy "madly in love" strikes me as the camel of proverb whose back was broken by the last straw. My correspondent won't like this letter, but my conscience will be clear, and the vision of that 23-year-old lad, who has always lived home with his mother until her death six months ago, won't rise to smite me.

Does that poor youngster realize what he's taking on in the way of responsibility? Neither of the lady's former husbands contribute a penny to the support of their daughters? You see the young husband at 23, old before his time, trying frantically to make his salary of $130 per month spread over his wife's ambitions for her daughters. You can see in your mind's eye the wife's desire to take things easy and fall back on that stupid alibi that she doesn't like housekeeping and has always been a poor cook. Apropos of the last, let it be said, here and now, that there's no excuse for any woman on God's green earth not being a good cook and knowing how to keep house.

And now, my dear ladies, please let me put to you a question which has agitated me for many a year. Why do certain women think there is no career open to them but marriage, and if that's their credo, why don't they prepare themselves for marraige by learning how to keep house, be thrifty, and help a man along.

If I happened to be in my correspondent's shoes, I'd go out, get a job and learn how to stand on my own two feet before I considered marriage especially to a boy of 23 who has no idea of what he's storing up for himself in the way of trouble.

Honestly, I believe there's a job waiting for any woman not qualified to wear a dunce-cap. Perhaps she will argue she married right out of the school room and has had no training. Granted. There isn't a city in these United States where a woman cannot equip herself in some sort of training.

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

By MARIAN MARTIN

Attention, thrifty mothers! Here's a smart two-in-one style for a small girl. It's a dress and cape outfit all in one. The adorable dress shows a scalloped front waistline and there're two panels at the front of the skirt. The neat little collar ma, be of contrast, with cuffs to match, and perhaps ric-rac edging for bright trim. That jaunty cape with its gathered shoulders and hand-slits may be worn with other dresses too. Make it of gabardine or flannel.

Pattern 9665 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress all one, requires 1⅞ yards 35 inch fabric; cape, 1¼ yards 54 inch fabric; dress with contrast, 1⅝ yards 39 inch fabric, ⅜ yard contrast and 2¼ yards ric-rac.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Size, Name, Address, and Style Number.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

Pattern 2949 contains accurate pattern pieces; diagram of block; instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing; yardage chart, diagram of quilt.

Send ten cents in coin for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly Pattern Number, your Name and Address.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Noel's face was suddenly illumined as if someone had turned on an electric bulb behind his eyes. His despondent lethargy vanished, and he faced me as might someone who had been granted a reprieve from the electric chair in the last quarter hour of time allotted him.

"Despises Stephen Redfield," he echoed, as though that were a thing almost incomprehensible. "But how can she when she has been—"

"Acting as if she were madly in love with him?" I countered. And I saw him wince at the words as if I literally had stabbed him.

"Acting" is the word I used, Noel," I told him. "It is the word I meant to use. That is just what she has been doing, and—she has given a marvelously convincing performance."

Noel's Spirits Lighter.

"I'll take my oath she has," Noel said glumly, but there was a nuance in his voice that told me his spirits were lightening by the minute, and that the soil was mellow for my planting.

"I am writing no brief of defense for her, dear boy," I went on. "She has behaved atrociously, and has excited a great deal of invidious comment."

"I wonder if you can realize how much," he said gravely.

"Yes, I can," I answered, "and I already have begun to call her to account for it; shall continue the process when I see her later tonight. When I do, I shall find out her reasons for acting as she has."

I paused and looked at him questioningly.

"One hypothesis, of course," I said, "is that she is acting in this way for your benefit, either to arouse your jealousy—thus proving to herself that you are as much in love with her as you always were—or in reprisal upon you for something you have done to offend her."

Seems Remorseful.

Noel suddenly flushed to the roots of his hair, and while his eyes held remorseful comprehension, there was a certain renewal of anger in his eyes which troubled me.

"I suppose I have been a bit neglectful of her," he said, "but that isn't the word—stand-offish, I guess, is a better one. You see, Aunt Madge"—he looked at me with shamed and tortured eyes—"I'm getting to be just a sort of tame canary. My own work isn't as important as hers, you know, and—do you know the way the members of the cast always speak of me—I've heard them—as Mary's husband, never by my own name?"

My heart sank at this realization that one of the most perplexing problems of the woman with a successful career had come to Mary.

It is the rare man who can accept his wife's success, glory in it, love and admire her for it, and yet keep himself and his own work sufficiently remote from her orbit, so that the occasional times when he is referred to as "Ann Blank's husband" are cause for gusty, hilarious laughter, instead of humiliation.

It takes a big man, mentally and spiritually, to achieve such an attitude and if his wife is worthy of such devotion, she gives him such respect, loyalty and adoration as no caveman, with a submissive echo for a wife, ever receives.

Was Noel big enough to win through his present problem? The question caromed around my brain, even as I answered his plaint with the sympathy I really felt for his dilemma. For I could understand his humiliation, with no present chance of his escaping from it.

But he was speaking again and I gave him careful attention.

"I wonder if she imagined I was mean enough to be jealous of her career, and that therefore I was loving her less," he said, with hurt bewilderment.

Then his anger flashed again. "But that was no excuse for her carrying on that way with Redfield," he said.

Coiffures Have Much Distinction

By MME. QUI VIVE.

There's no excuse for a scrambled, dowdy hairdress these days. Stylists have outdone themselves. Their offerings are varied and marvelous in detail. If our mops were glory crowns in the past what are they now? So much more glorious that the dictionary supplies no word to describe them. The feminine thatch has taken upon itself so much charm, loveliness and youthfulness that all those of yesteryears are not worth remembering.

This miracle of hirsute perfection started when a smart gent conceived the idea of giving woman an imitation of naturally curly hair. The permanent wave has meant more to the sisterhood than the vote. That was the one big step forward, so big that only the "ancients and honorables" among us who rattled with curling irons, kid curlers and other gadgets can understand or appreciate. An hour would be spent putting in a wave with the iron, and a sudden shower would make the head a mess of ragtags and bobtails. Look at us now! Let 'er rain; it matters not. Waves and ringlets stay as is.

Then came the shearing of those useless tress ends that had been the pride and joy of women, even before the time when Lady Godiva used hers for a kimona. Another step along the beauty road.

Strange how the first bob spun the world by the ear. Previous to the universal shearing, certain intellectual ladies considered it the only sensible arrangement. They, also, were for dress reform and chucking the steel-turreted corset, what we are wearing today is what they advocated then. Those grand old girls were ahead of their time. They were ridiculed unmercifully, the poor dears.

We hear the long-nosed critics saying today that every girl looks like every other girl as far as fashion is concerned. They're off on the wrong foot. They should consult their coiffure histories. When the Psyche knot flourished, every woman wore it—the long-nosed the snub-nosed, the moon-face and the one with gaunt, hollow cheeks. There is more individuality in hairdresses than there has been within the memory of your beauty reporter.

We realize that the arrangement of the hair must be a harmonious detail of the entire composition which is the Good Looking Woman. The profile is taken into consideration, the nose plays an especially important part when hair is getting styled. The contour of the neck decides the length of the bob.

Even the figure has a lot to do with the disposal of brain foliage. Formality for the heavyset woman; fluffy arrangements for the fluffy girl. We are getting down to brass tacks.

To the hairdressing profession we must take off our hats and bow low. Men and women of high artistic gifts have produced the enchanting styles that make us what we are. Long may they wave!

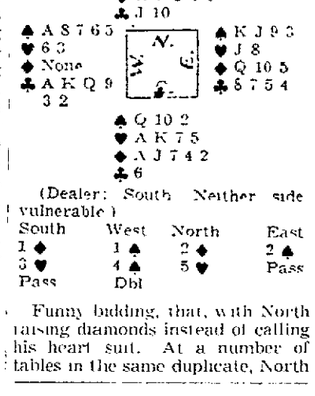
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GET HIM IN THE LEAD

Your problem on the defensive often simmers down to the placing of the lead in the proper hand—your own or your partner's, as the case may be. You may hold a tenace, and want a lead toward it, or may be blank in a suit and wish to ruff. Neither of those situations is of much use to you unless you can get the lead into the hand of the player across the table. If the only possible chance to do that is by risking a trick which you are otherwise sure to take yourself, it may not pay you to try the gamble. But it will pay if defeat of the hostile contract hinges upon it.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	1 ♠	2 ♦	2 ♠
3 ♥	4 ♠	5 ♥	Pass
Pass	Dbl

Funny bidding, that, with North raising diamonds instead of calling his heart suit. At a number of tables in the same duplicate, North was the heart declarer, but there were two instances of South playing it at 5-Hearts. In the other case, South opened with a heart, intending to bid the diamonds later.

One of the South players of 5-Hearts made the contract. West cashed the club K and spade A, then led the club Q which South ruffed. The declarer's only remaining problem was to avoid a diamond loser, dummy being set up otherwise. Counting East as more likely to have three if anybody had them since West's bidding indicated great distributional strength he led the diamond 2 toward the K and West's discard marked the winning finesse against the Q.

The West player who set his contract also led the club K, but after seeing the dummy, decided his great effort must be to obtain a ruff. His partner's 4 on the club lead called for a switch to the spades. Since East had supported them, he might have the K. So West led the spade 6 on the second trick. East won and switched to the diamond 5, which West trumped, beating the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

This hand may be bid many different ways, but do you know what is the most expert and advanced bidding of it?

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, August 8.

While the trend upward and onward is under splendid solar impetus, yet, judging by other configurations, there may be some erratic tendencies, with dubious situations to tax the acumen and good judgment. This latter problem may have factors of a public nature, in which group, fraternal or other collective issues seem of importance. These demand sound consideration and forethought and also there may be obstructions, limitations or frustrations not anticipated. While ambitions are kept worthy and with ideas of community well-being infact, all obstacles may be vanquished and definite progress attained.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of ultimate success with the accomplishment of their greatest desires and ambitions, in spite of the sudden development of a strange, erratic, or novel situation as well as the opposition of an elder or superior, which may tend to delay or disappoint. Public, community or group interests are uppermost in the attention and these may be incited to call for some mode of drastic action in order to compose or advance collective welfare.

A child born on this day should have great mental vitality and adaptability, with its sympathies leaning toward humane or cultural advancement. It may encounter some peculiar oppositions and obstacles but should eventually win out against all antagonisms and attain its goal.

DEFENSE NEEDS SNAG GUN ORDER

Pistols For Five New Police Officers Won't Arrive For Five Months.

National defense priority orders struck at the Mansfield police department today. Police Chief Meade K. Bates reported that he would be unable to purchase new service pistols for the five new traffic patrolmen immediately because of the press of defense orders.

Bates received a letter from the Colt Arms company in Hartford, Conn., saying that it would be unable to supply pistols for at least five or six months and even later if the initials "M.F.D." had to be engraved on the handles

The company explained that it was working on government orders and would be unable to fill private orders for several months.

Bates said that the department possessed sufficient guns, however, to allow all the new patrolmen to use borrowed ones until the new guns arrive.

Uniforms for the new men are expected to arrive by Aug. 15, according to Bates. The traffic officers will not go on street duty until they are uniformed, according to state law.

Wives of Army Fliers Keep a Stiff Upper Lip

NEW YORK—(INS)—Do wives of army or navy fliers worry about the safety of their mates?

The answer is "No."

A representative group of such wives at Mitchell Field were vehement in stating that they do not live in constant anxiety over the welfare of their husbands.

The keynote of the wives' attitude is found in the words of one army colonel's wife who declared:

"Women have long had utter confidence in men who have confidence in themselves. Wives of aviators are even prouder of their husbands' wings than are the men themselves and few of them would want their spouses to switch to less dramatic professions if offered the choice.

"And, of course, since the world began, women have always had a weakness for the valiant."

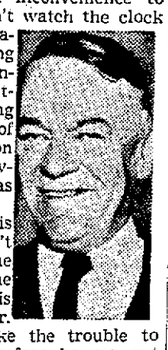
GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C. — As is becoming quite apparent this seven-to-seven gas station business isn't doing much more than cause a lot of inconvenience to people who don't watch the clock or read the papers, creating considerable unemployment, bitterly pinching the business of gas distribution and making everybody sore as hell.



The trouble is that we haven't been told the facts and the suspicion is growing that Mr. Ickes didn't take the trouble to get the facts before he set out to "Ickesate" everybody. As has already been demonstrated by other commentators, the average annual use of gas by non-commercial automobiles is about 650 gallons a year. The threat to ration to 5 gallons a week would mean 260 gallons a year. This is a cut of 60 per cent and not the 33⅓ per cent Mr. Ickes says he is aiming for.

Apparently the sweet secretary didn't even make a barnyard, dead-reckoning calculation before he began his specialty of threatening and ranting.

* * *

As everybody knows, there is no shadow of a threat of shortage of American petroleum products. This whole business is due to a wholesale raiding of the established American transport system of ocean-going tankers to give them to the British. This restricts but does not necessarily destroy the transportation of petroleum from the mid-continent and gulf ports to the eastern seaboard. It doesn't destroy it because there are other methods of getting the oil east.

One is through railroad tankcars. Another is by motor trucks, a third is by pipe line. There is a fourth, the subject of this column, which will be presently discussed.

The trouble with all these alternatives is vastly increased cost as compared with tanker transport. Railroad tank cars cost three times or more per barrel to move a given tonnage. Pipe line costs are in between but easily double ocean costs. Furthermore, to contsruct the necessary additional pipe lines would take a long time and use four million tons of steel—a strategic shortage item.

Motor transport is further out of reasonable consideration both because of a higher cost than any other method and because of an even more acute shortage of the needed material and equipment.

In this problem, I have been astonished to learn that no serious consideration has been given to a fourth possibility before turning to a well-known easier way of putting arbitrary and searing heat on a long suffering public. I mean towing petroleum products to the east coast in barges.

* * *

I don't pretend to be an expert in this field. I can't even vouch for the figures I am about to use, except to say that they were checked by one of the foremost tonnage experts in this country and counter-checked with another.

We have oil barges in our eastern waters capable of various cargoes from 30,000 to 50,000 tons. I am told that good ocean-going tugs could do this job, towing two barges about 100 miles a day, that larger barges could be built in two to three months time and that the average cost of one turn-around, with at least 40,000 barrels capacity, would be about $20,000 or 50 cents a barrel, which is less than tanker costs.

Maybe this is all wet. It is merely a preliminary inquiry relying on disinterested expert opinion. But it smells to me like paydirt. At least, why hasn't this alternatively been thoroughly sifted before reaching an overnight arbitrary decision?

Strike Snags Work on 8 U. S. Warships

PRODUCTION OF WARPLANES HIT BY BOTTLENECK

100 Built For Britain Stand Idle Due To Shortage of Propellers.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — An office of production management official disclosed today that delivery of more than 100 medium bombers produced for the British aerial offensive against Germany has been delayed by a shortage of propellers.

The war planes are standing in a field outside the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore, Md., ready for delivery, except for the propellers, he said.

He said that air shipment of propellers to the Martin plant are being made in order to speed the delivery of the planes.

OPM officials said that a shortage of parts, principally propellers, had held airplane production during July to approximately the 1,476 total produced during June, according to preliminary reports from manufacturers.

On the other hand, tank production showed large increases. The output of light tanks during April, May and June was 1,260 per cent greater than during the first quarter of 1941. Production of medium, 27-ton tanks increased 237 per cent.

OPM statistics revealed that machine gun production increased 69 per cent during the period. The smokeless powder output was up 126 per cent and TNT by 46 per cent. Garand rifles are being produced at a rate of more than 30,000 a month.

Production of two-engined bombers, during the first six months of this year increased 92 per cent; single-engined torpedo planes 146 per cent: and pursuit, observation and other military craft, 142 per cent. There was no increase in production of four-engined bombers.

Aircraft production averaged a general increase of 42 per cent from January to June.

ORGANIZING

AFL Seeks To Enlist Workers at Shelby Cycle Company.

An effort to organize employes of the Shelby Cycle company was underway today by members of the International Association of Machinists, (AFL) Richard Delong, financial secretary of the organizing committee revealed.

The move affects nearly 350 production workers at the plant, approximately 150 of whom are claimed by the Indenpendent Workers, a company union, DeLong said.

Meanwhile the organizing committee announced a meeting of the group to be held at Shelby City hall, Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

Richlanders Still Owe Half Million On 1940 Tax Bill

Richland countians still owe more than $250,000 in real estate taxes for the last half of the year and they will have to start paying soon to avoid a penalty, County Treasurer John E. Kolb warned today.

With the Aug. 20 tax deadline only 12 days away, only a little more than half of the taxes due for the last half period have been paid, the treasurer said.

Receipts so far amount to $280,369, but the tax bill is for more than a half million. Payments yesterday brought $9,765 into the county treasury. Monday produced the biggest day's receipts, or $12,495.

Kolb urged property owners to make payments within the next few days to avoid the anticipated rush during the final week. He said, however, that mail payments may help to prevent the usual jam at the office in the courthouse.

GIVES UP LIFE TO SAVE SONS

Drowns In Lake Erie After Tossing Rescue Line To Two Boys.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Two young boys today mourned the loss of their 38-year-old mother who sacrificed her life in Lake Erie to save them.

For the past 10 summers the Cecil Greenberg family has spent a few weeks at Blum's camp on the Lake Erie shore near Geneva Township park.

Yesterday morning, Mrs. Evelyn Greenberg took her two sons, Allen 10, and Sheldon, 6, for a swim in the lake. The waves were high and Mrs. L. E. Evans, a concessions operator, warned of the undertow.

When the mother and two boys were in water only up to her waist, 15 feet from shore, a wave knocked all three off their feet. Mrs. Grenberg was pushed against a pier and apparently stunned.

Mrs. Evans cried for help and Max Block and G. A. Palmer, two bystanders, obtained a life line and threw it to Mrs. Greenberg. It landed within her reach. But instead of holding it to be pulled to safety, she shoved the line toward Allen and Sheldon who grabbed it and were pulled to shore.

Block dived in the water and dragged Mrs. Greenberg to shore. She was still breathing but attempts to revive her were futile, despite three hours of artificial respiration. She was pronounced dead at Geneva hospital.

HUNT PAIR

Authorities Search For Area Men Who Fled Prison Farm.

Search continued today for two inmates of the London prison farm who walked to freedom yesterday. Both were from the Mansfield area.

The fugitives are John Miller, 34, of Richland county, and Robert Bittekofer, 31, of Crawford county.

Laff-a-Day

"Gosh, I don't see how I broke the whole dozen! I only dropped 'em once!"

The mother with a pre-school age daughter was being questioned by a nurse at the pre-school clinic held in the city health department today about the contagious diseases the youngster had experienced. At the mention of measles, chickenpox, mumps and all the other childhood diseases listed by the nurse the mother shook her head "no." The young daughter however didn't relish being completely passed by. She chimed in with, "But mother, you know I've had pink eye."

It's getting so a nurse not only has to know how to take temperatures and hold hands with the customers, but she also has to know how to talk back to the Quiz Kids. At least that's the trend at General hospital where applicants for nurses training have to pass a general I. Q. test with an average of at least 100. The questions Nurses Director Mable Selfe gives have little or nothing to do with nursing. One of them asks why hickory wood is used for wagon wheels. Do you know?

It may be August and there may be another heat wave on the way, but the Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce is already planning to help the city's needy families next Christmas. The JAC will start raising funds at a baseball game between the Mansfield Braves and Fremont at the fairground Monday night, Aug. 25. Proceeds of the game will help provide Christmas baskets for the needy and finance "going-away" parties for Richland county selectees. Tickets for the game will go on sale tomorrow. They will be available from any JAC member and at five Mansfield business establishments.

Councilman George C. Kyle, familiarly known among fellow councilmen as "No-man Kyle," threw a wrench into council's parliamentary machinery Tuesday night when he insisted on answering "yea" rather than "aye" to votes on measures. The use of "nay" for the negative sign and the similarity in the sound of "yea" and "nay" resulted in two or three votes being confused for a short while. Kyle finally consented to revert to the orthodox "aye" restoring order to the ranks.

Health Board Approves Nurse For School Position.

The Mansfield Board of Health has approved Mrs. Robert E. Rogers city health nurse, for the position of city school nurse left vacant by the resignation of Mrs. L. P. McNeil, Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, announced today.

Appointment to the position must be made by the Mansfield Board of Education which holds its next meeting on August 18. The health board recommended that the school group appoint Mrs. Rogers.

Mrs. McNeil resigned as city school nurse on August 1. A new appointment must be made by September 1 to permit the care of children who will return to school next month. If Mrs. Rogers is appointed by the Board of Education, another nurse must be selected by the Board of Health to fill her position. Among those being considered for the post is Mabel F. Husted, 305 West Third street.

WELL, IT LOOKED JUST LIKE GOLD

But Frantic Digging In Illinois Is Just Exercise.

GLENVIEW, Ill —(INS)— Glenview's gold rush was over today after several days of excitement which started when a building worker found something that glittered like anything—and like gold, too.

But all those who got spades, spoons and scoops to fill bags with dirt containing the shiny stuff were informed by Prof. Harold Ward, Northwestern University geologist, that they were wasting their time.

16,000 WALK OFF JOBS AT KEARNY WAYS

Union Seeks New Contract, Wants 'Modified Closed Shop.'

(By United Press)

KEARNY, N. J. — A strike at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company, halting work on $450,000,000 worth of defense shipping contracts, was declared completely effective today when 10,000 men of the 8 a. m. shift refused to pass picket lines.

Their defection brought the total number on strike to 16,000. Three thousand evening shift men left their jobs last midnight and 3,000 others, scheduled to start work at midnight, did not enter the plant.

The strike was called by the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (CIO) to enforce what leaders called "fair and legitimate proposals" for a new contract.

Two cruisers and six destroyers were being built for the navy at the yard and three tankers and two freighters for the maritime commission are on the ways. The shipyard also has a back-log of orders for other government ships.

More than 400 members of the union's Local 16 were on active picket duty today and clusters of other workers congregated along a highway leading to the plant and on rooftops and signboards.

About 50 policemen were on hand to keep traffic moving on the highway. There was no violence. The main picket line was before the plant's main gate. A smaller group of about 20 marched in front of another entrance.

About 12,000 workers gathered in the vicinity of the plant early today, 10,000 of them the employes scheduled to start work on the morning shift.

Union officials said the strike would not interfere with the scheduled launching of the 6,000-ton cruiser Atlanta Saturday. A skeleton force will be permitted to pass picket lines to carry out the launching. About 400 others will do police and fire duty in the yard and perform maintenance work, including keeping up steam on two destroyers and a cargo vessel completed recently.

All but 4,000 of the company's employes are members of the union's Local 16, which issued the strike call last night, following two months of negotiations on a new contract.

The union sought a closed shop and reclassification of a number of workers. Other demands, including a 12 per cent general wage increase, are not in dispute, union officials said, adding that they have offered to accept a national defense mediation board recommendation for a "modified closed shop."

The strike will be the shipbuilding industry's largest since President Roosevelt proclaimed a limited national emergency, union leaders said. The Federal yard is the second largest on the east coast. The company is a subsidiary of United States Steel.

Private Needs More Time to Complete Work

HOLLOWAY, Mich—(U.P.)—Pvt. John V. Prochaska may need a second army furlough to complete his threshing.

Prochaska, 30-year-old member of the Fort Sheridan, Ill., 210th coast artillery, was granted a 30-day leave by the army to thresh for 57 of his neighbors who said in a petition that he was the "only one in these parts who can run a machine."

His furlough is up Aug. 16 and despite the fact that he has threshed approximately 22,000 bushels of wheat and oats, he still has 25 farms on his list.

"I don't think I can make it," said Prochaska.

He added that he thought he was wasting his time at Fort Sheridan, "because a man 30 years old can do something more useful than drive a truck in an army camp."

BUCYRUS MAYOR CRACKS DOWN ON 'JUKE' BOXES

Says Ordinance Against Noise Will Be Rigidly Enforced; Stamp Plan Talked.

BUCYRUS — The recently adopted city ordinance regulating unnecessary noises, will be rigidly enforced with reference to "juke" boxes, Mayor William F. Whiteamire said today.

Several complaints have been made to police headquarters of the music boxes playing far into the night and the nuisance is to stop, Mayor Whiteamire said.

City council set up a nuisance and noise ordinance during the past year as a result of complaints which were especially music boxes.

CONSIDER STAMP PLAN

Crawford county, which is one of the few remaining counties in Ohio which has not adopted a food stamp system for poor relief, will study the stamps system at a meeting to be held within the near future.

DRIVER HURT AS CAR GOES THROUGH RAIL

Automobile Crashes Into High School Building at Shelby.

SHELBY — Robert Sheridan was seriously injured early Thursday morning, when his auto crashed through the guard rail and into the high school building here. He was taken to Memorial hospital, his hip dislocated, and with serious cuts on his face and neck.

He had just returned from Mansfield at 1:45 a. m. and had been asleep while his companion Howard Leapley was driving. After leaving Leapley at his Park avenue home, Sheridan took the wheel.

The car broke into a class room, damaging weather stone, metal sash and window panes, as well as the car.

Dr. Moffett is the attending psysician.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Few ball players make the jump from Class D to the American association without a stop-over in a middle circuit, but Findlay's Stan Mazgay, who led the Ohio State league in hitting most of the season, appears to have made the grade at Indianapolis.

When a leg injury forced Wayne Blackburn, former Mansfield Westinghouse star, out of action, Indianapolis tried half a dozen different combinations to fill Blackburn's jobs in center field and in the hitting lead-off position.

They finally got Mazgay from Findlay, and Stan has been filling both the hitting and fielding bill in capable fashion.

* * *

Other Ohio State leaguers who have taken the association jump in stride are Pitchers Glenn (Barney) Fletcher of Findlay, Frank (Porky) Biscan of Lima, and Les Winkkala of Fremont The last two are with Toledo and Fletcher with Indianapolis.

Mansfield could have had the sale price for Biscan if Manager Dewey Stover had taken the time to interview the boy in 1939

* * *

I have it from Brennan Bolin, business manager of Lima in '39, that Biscan hitch-hiked his way to Mansfield for an interview with Stover.

He told Bolin he waited in a hotel lobby from early in the morning until 2:30 in the afternoon after calling Stover by telephone as soon as he arrived, but Stover never showed up for the interview.

So Biscan went on to Lima, signed up that night, won a lot of ball games and brought a neat price when he was sold to Toledo.

Mansfield's chances of landing the 1942 state softball tournament of three days appear brighter with each passing day, according to Don Cram, secretary of the Mansfield softball commission, who has been contacting district commissioners over the state in an attempt to gain their support.

The state commission has told Cram it must have assurance of adequate lighting facilities at the Fairground, and also must be assured of enough hotel rooms to house the tournament players.

* * *

Last year's tournament at Massillon had neither the lighting nor housing facilities demanded by the tourney, the state commission reported, and is isn't likely the tournament will ever again go to a town of that size.

* * *

Tournament expenses will be approximately $1,000, and the Chamber of Commerce has promised its cooperation in obtaining underwriters for that amount

Gate receipts in three days of championship play should just about cover expenses, so the underwriters would be taking no great risk.

Bob Feller Tackles Tigers

Tribe Wants Revenge For Humiliation.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Smarting under the humiliation of Detroit's 11-run inning, the Indians went after the rubber game of their series today in a snarling mood.

* * *

Bob Feller was selected to bring revenge against the Tigers, who called on Johnny Gorsica. The Cleveland fireballer sought his 21st victory.

* * *

The 11 runs, chased across the plate in a third-inning assault on three pitchers, were all the Bengals needed to give Al Benton a 11 to 2 victory. The scoring spree set a record for the season.

Cleveland managed to tally twice in the seventh on singles by Oscar Grimes and Rollie Hemsley and Ray Mack's double.

Jim Bagby started for the Indians and moved along without trouble until the third. Al Milnar couldn't stop the outbreak, with Joe Krakauskas finally getting the third man out after 17 batters had gone to the plate.

* * *

Krakauskas went on to do a neat relief job, giving up only two hits in 4⅓ innings.

* * *

Here's the story of the Tiger's big inning

Billy Sullivan grounded out Frankie Croucher walked Benton sacrificed, but was safe when Hemsley dropped the ball after tagging him. Hemsley then made a wild throw to first, allowing both runners to advance. Rip Radcliff walked, filling the bases Charley Gehringer singled, scoring Croucher and Benton Clarence Campbell misjudged Barney McCosky's drive and it went over his head for a triple, scoring Radcliff and Gehringer. Jinky Higgins hit a home run, crossing the plate behind McCosky Milnar replaced Bagby, Bruce Campbell and Rudy York walked Sullivan singled, scoring Campbell Croucher singled, scoring York Benton sacrificed Radcliff walked, again filling the bases. Gehringer also walked, forcing in Sullivan Krakauskas replaced Milnar. McCosky singled, scoring Croucher and Radcliff Higgins walked filling the bases for the third time in the inning Campbell grounded to Mack.

Somebody always is rocking the boat in the National league. The boys ride along on an even keel for a couple of days and then, just when the fans take a deep breath of satisfaction, the jitterbugs start bouncing.

* * *

Today the Brooklyn Dodgers have bounced back into first place with a six-game winning streak and a margin of three percentage points over the St. Louis Cardinals, while the Pittsburgh Pirates, yesterday nine games out of first place, today are only eight away and still spouting fire and fury

The Cardinals backed out of the scene by losing a 5-1 struggle to the Cincinnati Reds, whose southpaw star Johnny Vander Meer, limited the Cards to eight hits, fanned nine and walked seven

The important factor, however, was a three-run homer by Mike McCormick It was the first one a Cincinnati player had hit since July 20

* * *

With the score of Cincinnati's conquest posted on the big black board in the Polo Grounds, the Dodgers stormed out in front of 52,791 New York fans last night and downed the Giants 3-1.

* * *

Dolph Camilly hit his 20th home run in the second inning and after that the game was a pitching duel between Kirby Higbe and Carl Hubbell Finally in the ninth inning the irrepressible Dodgers broke through Hubbell's masterful hurling for the deciding runs

The Pirates achieved their fifth straight and 17th triumph in 20 games by overwhelming the Chicago Cubs 13-3. The Buccaneers belted 13 hits, one of which was a home run by Pitcher Truett (Rip) Sewell, who coasted to victory.

Five-hit hurling by Manny Salvo brought the Boston Braves a 6-0

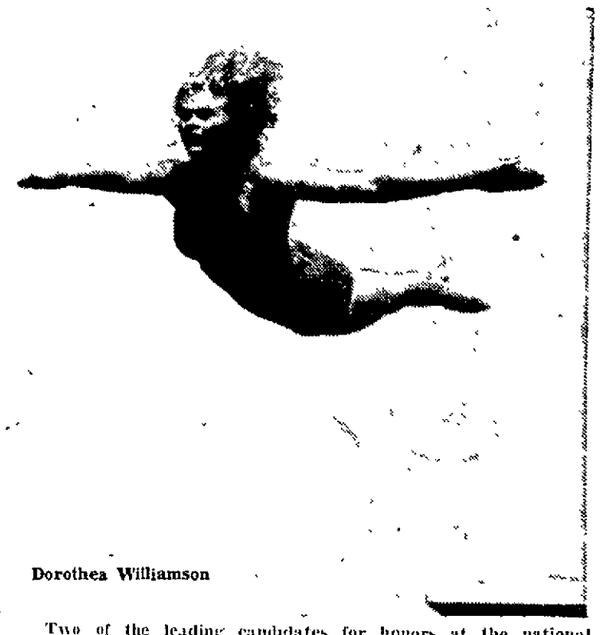
They're Prepping for Women's Swim Championships

Gloria Callen



Dorothea Williamson

Two of the leading candidates for honors at the national A. A. U. swim championships scheduled for High Point, N. C., Aug. 15-17, are pictured working out at New York's Manhattan Beach pool. They are Gloria Callen, 100-meter backstroke swim champion, and Dorothea Williamson, diving queen of the New York Women's Swimming association.

Enos-Spear Enter Finals

Beat Bourns-Slabaugh In Five-Set Match.

Bob Spear and Bob Enos had to battle through five sets yesterday to gain the doubles finals of The News-Journal City tennis tournament with a victory over Lowell Bourns and Watty Slabaugh.

* * *

Spear and Enos dropped the first set 1-6, took the second 6-3, lost the third 3-6, evened it up again by taking the fourth 6-3, lost the third 3-6, evened match as the final set went to deuce.

* * *

The winners took the first four games of the deciding set, but Slabaugh and Bourns came back to even it up at 4-4 Spear and Enos took the lead again at 5-4 and had match point ahead of them several times in the next game only to see Slabaugh and Bourns come back to even it up once more and take the lead 6-5

Enos and Spear turned on the heat to win the next three games and match, and they'll meet the winner of this evening's Moore-Ellison vs Larson-Meese match for the championship.

Spear also is in the semi-finals of mixed doubles with Ann Atron on a 6-3, 6-3 victory over Mr. and Mrs Thornton Moore.

* * *

Semi-final pairings were completed last evening in junior singles when George Perman defeated Myron Miller 8-6, 6-4, Norman Wilcox won from William Emich 6-2, 7-5, and Gene Miller defeated Johnny Schwarz 6-3, 6-1.

* * *

Perman meets Charley Franzen in the upper bracket and Wilcox and Gene Miller tangle in the other semi-final match.

First match in women's singles was played yesterday with the defending champion, Lois Weingartner defeating Viola Gregoria 6-2, 6-0.

JOE LOUIS QUALIFIES IN GOLF TOURNEY

DETROIT —(UP)— Joe Louis, world's heavyweight boxing champion, held one of the favored positions in the Amateur Negro Golfers' association tournament today as the annual tournament moved into 1st match play rounds.

The Brown Bomber toured the River Rouge municipal golf course in 78 to place fifth in the qualifying round six strokes behind the leader, Dr. Remus Robinson of Detroit, national Negro golf champion.

SHOOT PLANNED

The Mansfield Muzzle-Loader Rifle club will hold a shoot at it's grounds, route 30S three miles west of the square, Saturday at 1 p. m.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service) — Help! Help! Here's a chance for youse guys to do a good turn for the defense program Earl Ruby of the Louisville Courier-Journal proposes football teams for army camps and plants doing defense work to compete against each other Senator Happy Chandler has agreed to sponsor a trophy if leagues can be organized They would like to hear some good ideas on how to set up the program . . . That talk about Joe DiMaggio getting $80 000 next year gives everybody a laugh Just the same he's already getting a whole lot more than the $35.000 he was supposed to have signed for last winter Joe is no dumb gazabo. He knows when he's well paid. He may ask for a healthy raise, but not in Babe Ruth's class.

* * *

THE PORT SIDE OF IT.

Lefthanders have been more effective than righthanders in the American association this year . . . The only club which has a winning percentage against both pitching styles is Louisville . . . Leave it up to us kernels, suh!

* * *

SPORTS COCKTAIL

Connie Mack has conceded the pennant to the Yankees. He told us as much at the world series last year. . . . He picks his own A's to finish in the first division . . . Lou Nova, still vacationing in Maine, thinks he can knock Louis out in less than ten rounds . . . If you want to get down a good bet on the national singles tennis championship take Riggs, although Frankie Kovacs still has plenty of backing . . . Pete Fox, who hit three doubles in a game Tuesday for the Red Sox hadn't made an extra base blow till last week . . . Both the Reds and Red Sox have decided to pass up exhibition games in Havana next spring.

* * *

PITCHER WANTED.

How's this for an all-star team composed of National league managers . . . Jimmy Wilson, catcher, Bill Terry, first base, Frankie Frisch second base, Leo Durocher, shortstop, Bill McKechnie, third base, Bill Southworth, Doc Prothro and Casey Stengel, outfielders, . . . They would have to pick up a pitcher someplace.

Lima Favored In Tourney

Junior Legion Sluggers Enter Semi-Finals.

COLUMBUS- (AP)- The 15th annual Ohio American Legion junior baseball championship tournament entered the semi-final stage today with a hard-hitting, aggressive Lima nine rated a two-to-one favorite over the three other remaining contenders — Cincinnati, Louisville and Warren.

* * *

The double elimination policy governing play set Lima up as the team to beat after the Allen county sluggers hammered out a 10 to 4 victory over Cincinnati yesterday and emerged as the only undefeated team in the tournament.

* * *

Lima and Cincinnati meet again today with a victory necessary to keep the downstaters in the race. Lima on the other hand, still could lose and remain on even terms.

* * *

The other semi-finalists, Warren and Louisville who have already lost one game, faced the same picture as Cincinnati—win or else.

Lima's stellar battery, Pitcher Vocovich and Catcher Wells, staked the team to its wide tourney lead Wells hit a triple with the bases loaded and Vocovich added a home run with one on to spark a nine-run rally in the fourth inning that proved Cincinnati's downfall.

Louisville won its way into the semi-finals with a 7 to 5 victory over Cedarville

Shooters Set New Mark

Four Records Broken and Two Tied In Joust

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Intent on rewriting the entire record book after setting four new marks and tying two others in six attempts yesterday, the country's leading shotgun shooters were set today for another six-title joust in the seventh annual national skeet championships

Up for decision over the 12-field layout, biggest in national tourney history, were the all-gauge junior and sub-junior competitions, the former for youths under 17 and the latter for those under 13; and the 20-gauge events for men, women, professionals and families, the latter a two-person team event made up of father-son, father-daughter, husband-wife, sister-brother, etc.

Although he isn't expected to take the top spot, 10-year-old Joe Devers of Dayton, O., youngest entrant in this year's tourney, will be the object of many eyes during the sub-junior race

Patricia Laursen, the 19-year-old Akron, O., miss whose opening day performance was far under par, defends the women's championship, with Leslie Webb of Richmond, Va., attempting to retain his professional title.

Braves Cool Off In 6-Game Losing Streak

Kuzava Drops Mound Duel To Hornyak; Bill Ramsey Sold

THE red hot Mansfield Braves of a week or so ago are cooling off today in the chill air of a six-game losing streak after dropping a double-header last night at Fremont 3 to 0 and 7 to 4.

Lou Hornyak edged Bob Kuzava in a hurling duel in the seven-frame opener, allowing the Braves only four hits while Fremont was collecting but six off the slants of the Mansfield southpaw.

* * *

The second tilt was another story of missed scoring chances for the Braves as they tallied only four runs on 11 hits, while Fremont chalked up seven runs on eight hits and four Mansfield errors.

* * *

But the Braves haven't lost their hustle. Trailing 7 to 1 going into the seventh inning, they stayed in the ball game by pushing over a run in that stanza and then came back with a two-run rally in the eighth when Manager Clowson batted for Coleman and drove in the second marker.

* * *

Bobby TeStruth was the only Brave who failed to get a hit, while Mangan, Siegbert, Morse, Reinka and Coleman each got two off big Jim Stasaitis.

* * *

Ramsey Fremont center fielder, was sold to the St Louis Cardinals on a 15-day option, and left after the double-header to report to Springfield today He's been hitting 352.

Freddy Wolpert has been named to take over the hurling chores for the Braves tonight when they meet Fostoria at the Fairground.

COPS FOURTH CROWN

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va —(UP)— Forest McNeill of West Virginia today held the Virginia-West Virginia seniors' individual golf championship to mark the fourth straight year that a West Virginian has won the title.

Rudy Okleson Sold to Flint

Braves Get $200 For Wild Young Hurler.

Rudy Okleson, tall right-handed pitcher of the Mansfield Braves was sold yesterday to the Flint, Mich., club for $200, President George Satterlee announced

* * *

Buzz Wetzel, head of the Cleveland farm system, was at the ball game Tuesday night between Fremont and the Braves, and engineered the Okleson sale

Okleson had the poorest record of any Mansfield hurler and because of his wildness had been of little value to the Braves recently Flint needed a batting practice pitcher and Wetzel thought Okleson would fill the bill in that job

Satterlee said Okleson's place on the Mansfield roster would not be filled immediately.

Rally Takes League Fray

Humphryes Sink Coals In Commercial Tilt.

Commercial league softball teams went round and round last night as every club saw action. Humphryes pulled one out of the fire as they edged the N. and W. Coals 10-9; Tappans subdued the Town Taverns 6-2; Isalys swamped the Farm Tools 14-3, and the Mansfield Tires dropped the Athletic Supplies 11-7.

Humphryes sailed into the eighth inning on the short end of a nine to eight tally but drove across two runs in the final half to put the game away. Simpson and Willis sparked the winning club at bat.

Kleer held the Town Tavern stickmen to four bingles as Tappans made six runs out of eight hits to take the tilt 6-2. Patterson and Shipley did the heavy work for the winning club.

Every man on the Isaly's club connected safely as the hapless Farm Tools were bombarded 14-3. Christman held the Tools to five bingles in the fray.

A three run last inning rally wasn't enough to stop the Mansfield Tires as they chicked the Supplies 11-7. Wentz sent one out of the park for the victors while Morgan and Scott of the Supplies jumped on one of the Wentz' offerings for a round trip.

The New York Yankees divided a doubleheader with the Boston Red Sox, but still managed to increase their big American league by a half game through Cleveland's loss to Detroit.

Tex Hughson and Mike Ryba held the Yanks to six hits in the first game, two of them homers by Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon, as the Red Sockers smashed to a 6-3 victory. Hughson hurt his arm in the third inning and Ryba finished to take credit for the victory. In the nightcap Marvin Breuer held Boston to five hits and DiMaggio doubled two runs across in the sixth inning for the margin of a 3-1 triumph.

The St. Louis Browns made use of a five-run fourth inning to take the first game of their doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox, 9-6, but Lefty Thornton Lee came back with a six-hit pitching job to give the Sox the second 5-2.

Washington whipped the Philadelphia Athletics 5-1 in a night game.

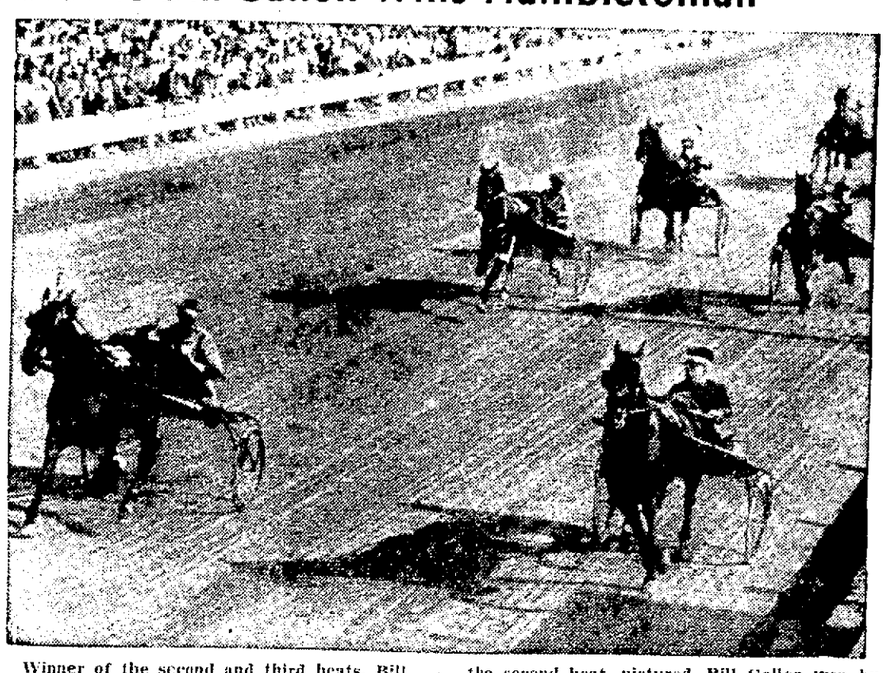
BROWN WINS

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Cleveland Brown, 126-pound Dayton slugger, won an easy 10-round decision over "Sonny" Brentz of Louisville, Ky., here last night.

Favorite Bill Gallon Wins Hambletonian



Winner of the second and third heats, Bill Gallon, left, a brown colt owned by R. H. Johnston of Charlotte, N. C., and piloted by Lee Smith, takes the 16th annual Hambletonian stake at Good Time track at Goshen, N. Y. In the second heat, pictured, Bill Gallon won by a photo finish over His Excellency, owned by Bill Strang of New York. A crowd of 25,000 saw the race. In the first heat, Bill Gallon finished sixth. Time for the final heat was 2:05.

Bill Gallon Cops Classic

Johnston's Colt Takes Race To Extra Heats.

GOSHEN, N. Y. —(AP)— Three years ago R. J. Johnston, wealthy Charlotte, N. C., cotton textile manufacturer, sat in the stands at Good Time park and thrilled to the sight of McLin Hanover winning the classic Hambletonian. He decided he would like to see his silks coming down there in front.

* * *

A year later he stepped into the sales ring at Lawrence Sheppard's Hanover, Pa., Shoe farms and bid in Ashley Hanover for $1,800. He promptly changed the name of the son of Sandy Flash to Bill Gallon.

* * *

His next step was to turn the colt over to Lee Smith, 47-year-old, weatherbeaten, 145-pound trainer from Dadeville, Ala. Smith had been in and out of the Grand Circuit for years.

* * *

Yesterday the combination of horse-trainer and owner achieved what many others have tried to do for years—they won the Hambletonian as 25,000 fans cheered themselves hoarse. With Smith giving Bill a perfect drive the Johnston-owned colt came back from defeat in the first heat to win the final two miles and the purse of $20,-$65.95.

* * *

His Excellency, $6,100 yearling from Bill Strang's Brooklyn stable won the first heat in the slow time of 2:07¼ as the southerner got off to a bad start and finished sixth. But Smith made no mistakes in the second as Bill forced the race into extra heats for the first time since 1934. It took the camera to separate them but Bill's nose was in front 2:05⅕.

Passing the half mile post in the third heat Bill took the lead with His Excellency right at his heels. But the New Yorker was no match for the southerner. Bill won by three lengths in 2:05.

THREE TEAMS ENTER DISTRICT TOURNEY

F. L. "Doc" Daugherty, county softball commissioner, announced today that Yuncker Sports, Mansfield Athletic Supplies and Shelby Cycles will represent Richland county in the district softball tournament starting Monday night at Ashland.

Page Dairy Team Has Good Record

The Toledo Page Dairy softball state champions, who meet a Mansfield all-star team next Wednesday night at the Fairground diamond, compiled an enviable record last season.

Winning 49 out of 52 games they marked up a winning streak of 48 straight victories.

To dethrone the Ferguson State Auditors as Ohio champions, the Pages had to first win the Toledo championship and the Northwestern Ohio district title to reach the state tourney.

The Pages have won the state championship in four out of the last six years.

OUTPUT SOARS FOR IRON PITS IN MINNESOTA

This Year's Ore Production Predicted To Reach 55 Million Tons.

DULUTH, Minn. —(UP)— Minnesota's iron ranges have taken on a new significance with the speeding up of the national defense effort.

From the yawning, open pit mines in northern Minnesota this summer workers will take more than a fourth of the ore which will be dug out in the United States.

Mining experts estimate that 55,000,000 tons of ore—a new record for the Minnesota mines—will be mined on the state's three iron ranges during the season. The ore will be shipped in Great Lakes boats to the steel centers of the east.

The biggest previous total was the 49,161,064 tons mined in 1937.

The major iron ranges in Minnesota are the Mesabi, the Vermillion, and the Cuyuna. The largest of these is the Mesabi which contains the world's largest open pit mine.

This great Mahoning mine is 2½ miles long, from a half mile to a mile wide, and nearly 400 feet deep in places. It contains more than 60 railroad tracks and covers 1,100 acres. Since the mine was opened in 1895, miners have taken out more than 260,000,000 tons of ore.

Experts estimate that the Mesabi range has iron ore reserves of more than a 1,000,000,000 tons.

From the mines the ore is carried in railroad cars to the docks at Duluth and Superior, Wis., and to the huge ore docks at Allouez, Wis.

The Allouez docks rise 82 feet about the waters of Lake Superior, and the longest pier there extends 2244 feet into the bay. In the dock there are 1352 ore pockets with a capacity of nearly 450,000 tons.

During the Great Lake shipping season the docks are open 24 hours daily. Railroad officials expect to load an average of 13 boats daily with about 130,000 tons of ore during the season. The average time for loading a 10,000 ton load at the Allouez dock last year was 3 hours 13 minutes.

NEWSMAN TO TELL EXPERIENCES AS WAR CORRESPONDENT IN BOOK

NEW YORK —(AP)— Robert St John, who returned to the United States recently after nearly two years as a war correspondent for the Associated Press in the Balkans, has resigned to devote his efforts to radio work, lecturing, and writing a book on his experiences abroad.

In a letter to Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, St. John expressed regret at leaving the service because, he said, "I am and always have been and always will be loyal to the AP."

He added "However, with my own country on the verge of war, I feel I have a duty. There are certain useful functions I can perform on the basis of what I have been through. I feel almost in a crusading spirit in my desire to talk about the realities of the situation."

St. John joined the Associated Press staff abroad at the outbreak of the war and scored a number of notable news-beats while stationed in various Balkan capitals.

He was wounded in Greece after covering the blitzkrieg in Yugoslavia, evacuated to Cairo, and returned home by way of Cape Town, where he covered the arrival of survivors of the torpedoed steamer Robin Moor.

Strengthening of 'Nation's Inner Defenses' Urged

DENVER (INS) —Strengthening of the moral and social backbone of the United States "the nation's inner defenses" was urged in Denver by Mrs. Grace Hahn of Miami, Fla., national president of the Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic.

"We live in an era in which attack from without is to be less feared than attack from within," Mrs. Hahn said. "Under the skirts of patriotism many organizations have sprung up within our borders which are the opposite of patriotism.

"These subversive groups with one hand are offering us gifts and with the other preparing to stifle our very life. They have undermined our social and moral thought with new dogmas thinly veiled with a veneer of modern philosophical patriotism that points toward disintegration.

"Today as in the days of Lincoln united we stand and divided we fall."

Mouse Gnaws On Shoe and Halts Court's Session

NEW YORK —(INS)— Court sessions frequently have been disrupted by collapsing witnesses or outbursts of spectators.

But an unprecedented stoppage of the wheels of justice occurred in Queens county court when Judge Charles S. Colden called a halt in proceedings because of the gnawing of a mouse on a reporter's shoe.

The assistant district attorney found he could not concentrate on his legal trend of thought because of the strange noise. After a search the mouse was discovered devouring the reporter's shoe nibble-by-nibble. The diligent reporter was not aware of the mouse's presence.

So at the request of the attorney, a recess was called while two court attendants rounded up the offending mouse.

HOTEL COMPANY NAMES OFFICERS

Keating Named President of Organization; Directors Are Also Chosen.

Stockholders of the Richland Hotel company, owners of the Mansfield-Leland hotel property, held their annual meeting at the hotel Tuesday afternoon and elected the following board of directors:

Harry S. Black, Roger A. Black, Henry G. Brunner, G. L. Draffan, Charles Hoffman, Charles H. Keating, G. J. Kochenderfer, R. E. Moorhead, E. S. Nail, G. W. Stephens, W. J. Spreng, William M. Weldon and William M. Weldon, jr.

At a meeting of the directors, following the stockholders meeting, the following officers were elected for the next year: C. H. Keating, president; William M. Weldon, vice president and counsel; W. J. Spreng, secretary and H. S. Black, treasurer.

KEEPS PROMISE TO COME BACK

BRISTOL, Conn.— (U.P.) —This town has a "phantom burglar" who keeps his word.

On New Year's day he ransacked a Boy Scout cabin and penned on the back of a calendar:

"Jan. 1, 1941. The Phantom has struck. I will be back again. Happy New Year."

He came back, as promised, a few weeks later.

JUDGE DOUBTS STORY OF HOW TO SHED SWIM SUIT DECENTLY

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— A Policeman told Magistrate John D. Mason in Coney Island court yesterday how a woman can shed a bathing suit beneath a boardwalk without being immodest.

The case before the magistrate was that of Mrs. Ruth Fox, 39, who pleaded guilty but assured the court there was no indecency involved.

"I don't understand how you can take off your bathing togs without there being some indecency," Magistrate Mason said. "Tell me how it was done."

"Judge," the defendant replied. "I pleaded guilty and I can't see any sense in making this a laughing matter."

The magistrate assured her that was not his intention, but that he still was curious.

"I slip a beach dress over my bathing togs and then let the bathing suit drop," Mrs. Fox said.

"I still don't see how it can be done," the court observed.

"Your honor," Special Patrolman Clifton L. Davis interjected, "there was no indecency attached to it."

He explained, with gestures, that the beach dress was loose enough so that the shoulder straps of the bathing suit could be slipped down and, with wriggles and tugs, the wet suit dropped to the ground.

"I still don't understand it," the magistrate said, fining Mrs. Fox $2. "There ought to be an exhibition."

County 'Puts Out' Far More Than It Takes In In July

Richland county general fund expenditures last month exceeded receipts five times and the county's operating balance dropped to $29,842 Aug. 1 from $50,285 July 1, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe's monthly financial report showed today.

The county spent $25,474 for operation during July and received only $5,031. With undivided real estate taxes totaling $233,507 in the county treasury, however, there is a reservoir from which to draw funds before the end of this month, the report showed.

An overdraft of $50,000 against the Mansfield schools was shown on the statement. The funds represent an advance draw against the collection for the second half of the year.

Direct relief expenditures amounted to $6,313 in July as compared with receipts of $3,776. The balance in the relief fund Aug. 1 was $4,136.

Shipboard Romance

Sylvia Taylor

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XXVIII

Jimmy returned from his telephone call almost immediately and Doris did not ask about it. She knew that he did not want to discuss anything with her at this time. What he wanted her to know he would tell her of his own accord.

"I'm leaving at nine tonight," he told her.

"Only for two days," Doris reminded him.

Miss Hargrave hovered in the background smiling sympathetically.

"Is it all right for Doris to leave the hospital?" Jimmy asked the nurse. "I thought we might go out for a while."

"Of course!" Miss Hargrave said. "She's perfectly well now. Just bundle her up and don't let her get cold."

It was not the first time Doris had been out of the hospital. Don and Bonnie had taken her for several rides, but to leave with Jimmy was a new and more exciting experience. Doris wore her smart black suit and fur jacket and a large black hat, which swooped over one eye and framed her fair hair like a soft shadow.

"You look very dangerous," Jimmy Allen said, smiling as he took her hand in the taxi.

She looked up at him, too happy to speak, or wonder, or to be afraid. His ring lay heavily upon her hand, as the seal of his love lay upon her heart.

* * *

Jimmy instructed the driver to go slowly as they drove through the snowy streets of Detroit. The trees were outlined with crystal flakes. Small children, dressed warmly in mittens and leggings, were building snow men on the white lawns before their homes.

"A long way from South America," Jimmy remarked.

Doris remembered sultry, tropical Rio de Janeiro, summer in Buenos Aires . . . nights when she had danced with Ricardo Torres beneath the blazing Argentine stars . . . damp heat, dark eyes, and gigantic palms. Had she ever really been there?

"Darling," she said, almost in a whisper, "It's a miracle that things worked out for us, after all the trouble we've had."

"It wasn't trouble between us," he reminded her. "It was May Whittier."

"But you can understand why I thought you broke our engagement because of what May had said?"

"Of course! It was only natural after hearing our conversation. But if you had waited a minute longer, sweetheart, you would have understood the real reason I couldn't marry you—that my wife's radiogram demanded more money before she would go through with the divorce."

"A minute longer," Doris repeated. "Little things like that make such terrible misunderstandings. Think of the romances that are broken up because people are too proud to talk things over—just as we were."

"But I always loved you," Jimmy said huskily.

"And I've always loved you, Jimmy. That's all that matters."

* * *

Their day together was one that Doris would always remember. They lunched at a hotel and Doris proudly noted that Jimmy was the best looking man in the room. She saw women glance at him admiringly and Doris was thrilled to know that this man belonged to her. In the afternoon they attended a movie and sitting in the deeply cushioned seats Jimmy held her hand. Doris scarcely saw the picture on the screen.

When they came out of the theater the dusk was fading rapidly into night.

"You're not too tired to go out for dinner?" Jimmy asked anxiously.

"Of course not! Jimmy, it's perfectly ridiculous for you to make me stay at the hospital and keep a nurse."

"You're staying there until I get back," Jimmy Allen said firmly. "And you're keeping Miss Hargrave. I'm not taking any chances on something happening to you."

She laughed and pressed his arm. "Where are we going for dinner?"

He chose a quiet place where an open fire lent charm to the colorful restaurant. They lingered over their dinner until almost eight o'clock.

"We'd better go, darling," Jimmy said. "I don't want to miss that plane."

"Two more days," Doris whispered, on their way back to the hospital.

"Two more days," he agreed, "until you'll be Mrs. Jimmy Allen. He touched the diamond blazing on her finger. "I have the wedding ring too. Want to see it?"

"Yes."

He showed her a slender band of diamonds. "Put it on," he urged.

"Oh no! I couldn't do that. It's bad luck," Doris said.

He laughed. "Darling, when will you get over the idea that something else is going to happen?"

"Something has happened so many times," Doris said soberly.

They walked up to the hospital steps arm in arm.

"There is nothing in this world that can keep me from marrying you now," he assured her. "Nothing. No one."

But far into the night Doris lay awake wondering. There was still a barrier between her and Jimmy Allen; something he had refused to discuss; something she had tried to dismiss from her mind.

* * *

Now that her wedding day was approaching the voice of conscience began to ring again in her heart. "You have no right to him," it said. "Your father is a criminal" . . . Time and time again on the ship she had told herself this same thing. Even before May Whittier had lied and broken up their romance. Doris had known that she could not marry Jimmy Allen. George Malone was her father. He was a criminal. When she had tried to tell Jimmy he refused to listen. Perhaps he did not know. Perhaps even the police did not know. But that did not change the circumstances. Jimmy must be told and, regardless of his reaction, she had no right to marry him. The blood in her father's veins was in her. What of her children? Doris had refused to face the issue for weeks, hoping vaguely that some miracle might change things. But could she ever be happy with Jimmy feeling that this happiness did not rightfully belong to her?

All night Doris tossed restlessly. Maybe she was taking the whole thing too seriously. Jimmy had asked her not to worry. He had promised to tell her all about Malone when he returned from Chicago. Her mind argued on both sides of the question with equal conviction. If Jimmy knew about her father and still wanted to marry her, wouldn't that be fair?

Miss Hargrave found her patient exhausted the next morning. There were deep circles of fatigue beneath the blue eyes.

"You'd better stay in bed this morning and rest," her nurse said.

Languidly Doris agreed but a plan was taking shape in her mind. "This afternoon I thought I'd walk over to Bonnie's. It's only about five blocks and I need a little exercise. It's such a nice day."

Miss Hargrave agreed to her plan but added, "I'd better go with you."

Doris said tactfully, "I meant to ask you if you'd go downtown for me and get some stockings this afternoon. I can go to Bonnie's alone and you can pick me up there on your way home."

Miss Hargrave hesitated. "But you haven't been out alone yet."

Doris protested. "If Jimmy hadn't insisted upon my staying here I would have been out of the hospital weeks ago."

"All right," Miss Hargrave agreed. "But you stay at your friend's until I come. Don't get ambitious and try to walk home."

Doris promised. She bundled up in her coat and cumbersome goloshes and wrapped an extra scarf about her throat. But when she left the hospital she did not go directly to Bonnie's. Instead she walked to a drugstore to buy a newspaper.

At first glance she had the information she wanted. George Malone's picture was there on an inside page, and about it in bold type were the words, "MALONE PLEADS GUILTY TO BANK ROBBERY."

Doris paid for the paper and walked on.

"What's wrong?" Bonnie said, greeting Doris in surprise.

Doris spread out the newspaper. "Have you seen this?"

"Yes," Bonnie admitted.

"He was wanted for bank robbery before the kidnaping!" Doris cried. "And he's my father!"

"But the police don't know that," Bonnie said. "Here, honey, read this account and you'll see I'm right. Not once does it mention anything about Malone's having a daughter. Jimmy probably doesn't know it himself."

"That's just it!" Doris cried. "Do you think I can marry Jimmy without telling him?"

"All right, tell him," Bonnie agreed. "Jimmy loves you, Doris. It won't make any difference."

"But it makes a difference to me," Doris said dully. "These past two weeks I've tried to fool myself into thinking it was all right to marry him, but seeing this . . ." pointing to Malone's evil face, "seeing this . . . my father! Oh, Bonnie, I can't do it. It isn't fair to him, to say nothing of his family. I couldn't expect them to understand.

"It isn't your fault, Doris. You mustn't let the fact that Malone is your father ruin your life—and Jimmy's life, too."

* * *

"Last night I wasn't sure what was the right thing to do but as soon as I saw this newspaper I knew . . . I can't marry him, Bonnie, that's all there is to it! And I suppose this account in the paper is nothing compared to what what was in the papers before. No wonder you wouldn't let me see them."

"We were afraid you'd take it this way," Bonnie admitted. "And it's so wrong, Doris, honey. You're not being fair to anyone."

White-faced, Doris stared at her. "It's no use. Nothing you can say, nothing anyone can say, will change things. George Malone is my father and evidently he's a confirmed crook. I can't marry Jimmy. I thought I could, but I can't."

* * *

Jimmy Allen returned two days later from Chicago. He was met in the hospital corridor by Miss Hargrave who said, "Something is wrong with Doris. Maybe she'll tell you what it is. She hasn't been herself since you left."

Then Jimmy entered the small white room and took Doris into his powerful arms. "What's the matter, darling?" he demanded. "Miss Hargrave says you aren't well."

Tragically Doris faced him, but her voice rang with determination. Drawing the square-cut diamond from her finger, she said, "I can't marry you, Jimmy! Now . . . or ever."

Rates are not the same at all loan companies. We publish our payments and our rate of charge to help you shop for a loan.

Loans made three ways: (1) on signature; (2) on car; (3) on furniture. No endorsers. Friends or relatives are not told. Fair treatment in case of sickness or unemployment. Payments include charges of 2% monthly on balances of $300 or less and 1½% monthly on any remainder—the same rate to everyone. Nothing else to pay. To apply—phone, write or visit office. Money ready next day—or sooner if necessary.

STOCK MARKET RALLY EFFORT FALLS SHORT

Leading Issues Fail To Show Come-Back Vigor In Day's Trade.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Specialized rallying attempts persisted in today's stock market, but the general run of leaders showed scant come-back vigor.

Some bidding came in, brokers said, on the idea the market, on average, had been unchanged or off for the past eight successive sessions and might be in a position to negotiate a technical recovery.

Boardrooms found additional confirmation of the increased momentum in industry in the Dun & Bradstreet summary disclosing another jump in the country's bank clearings.

A little market encouragement was derived from merchandising summaries indicating this summer's retail spending has been the best in more than a decade.

SEEKS RECRUITS

Naval Officer Will Go To Galion and Bucyrus.

Recruits for both the naval reserve and the regular navy will be accepted tomorrow at the Galion postoffice from 9 a. m. to 11.45 a. m. and at the Bucyrus postoffice from 12 30 p. m to 4 p. m W G Cox, Mansfield area naval recruiting officer, said today.

Men enlisting in the naval reserve will be retained on active duty during the period of national emergency, but will be released at the expiration of the emergency, Cox said.

Men with trades may enlist in the rating for which they are qualified, Cox continued, and those without trades may enlist directly for one of the naval training schools

Enlistment periods in the regular navy are for six years for men between the ages of 18 and 31. For those between 17 and 18, the enlistment period lasts until they become 21 years of age.

CITY WARMING UP TO DEFENSE

washing machines and parts for automobiles and other goods whose raw materials are being diverted to defense products.

The Wall Street Journal writer states that although Mansfield business men were not anxious to obtain defense work at first that their attitude is changing.

"The proposed transition from durable consumer goods to defense goods threatens to leave many of these manufacturers with sharply curtailed output and they are worried

"It's a question of getting defense business now or suffering a sharp curtailment of their productions Will they get it? They don't know

"Westinghouse, the biggest employer here, has not yet found a defense item that fits into its productive machine. They have been thinking about two items —binoculars and shell cases," the article said.

Westinghouse and other electrical manufacturers would be affected by any government order limiting refrigerator and other electrical appliance production but would probably receive defense orders to take up the slack.

Empire and Mansfield Tire and Rubber would be affected only indirectly if auto productions is cut The first produces steel sheets for auto bodies while the latter turns out tires or various brand names for such outlets as Sears-Roebuck.

Expert Reveals New Statistics On Marriage

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—Men generally select girls of lower intelligence and of less education than their own when choosing a wife, according to Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the American Institute of Family Relations

In an address at the recent Lindenwood College Family Life Conference at St. Charles, Mo., Dr. Popenoe said that it is important for a young person to learn to get along with his or her own sex before atempting to associate successfully with the opposite sex.

Dr. Popenoe also said that statistics have refuted the old belief that a great diference in age is a dangerous factor in marriage.

Feel Like a New Person, I Can Give All the Praise to Bee Bee's

Felt so bad, weak and tired out that he told his wife he would be dead in six months if he didn't get something to make him feel better. Feels wonderful since taking this marvelous treatment Bee Bee's.

Mr. Clinton Wolfe of 603 Miami St., Piqua, Ohio, says he feels like a new person after taking Bee Bee's.

"I felt so weak and tired during the day that at night I would kick and roll in bed and couldn't get proper sleep During the day I would drag along and I didn't have any energy to work I used to get up during the night four times but only once now and some nights not at all Before I took Bee Bee's my muscles were flabby and 'clear gone' — and my arm seemed the size of a 10-year-old boy's Now my muscles are stronger and my energy has come back and I feel better all over I am twice as strong as I was Every time I go to work, I take a dose of Bee Bee's with weight dropped from 150 to 130 pounds. I could eat but my food seemed to have no effect on me. My food does me plenty good now. Spots would form before my eyes. My back ached and my feet swelled so bad I could not put my shoes on I had such stiffness in my legs that I thought I had muscular Rheumatism. Now all my above troubles are relieved and I feel like I am a new person since taking Bee Bee's." Try a bottle for yourself and be proved of its merit
